TO THE MEMBERS OF THE MOHAWKS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE FROM THE CHIEF

Se:kenh Sewakwekenh:

I am pleased to provide you with this report on issues and hope that you enjoyed the Christmas holiday season with your family and friends.

PRESQU'ILE PROVINCIAL PARK - DEER CULL

At the meeting of December 23, 2002, council approved to sign an agreement with the Ontario Provincial Parks Commission for a controlled cull to take place in the park on January 10, and 11, 2003 and January 12, 2003, if necessary. I am enclosing a copy of the agreement for your perusal. Currently the park is over populated with an estimated 225 white tailed deer.

The reduction of the herd is necessary to protect the park's ecosystem since the park can only support a herd population of 35 deer. The plan calls for a reduction of 120 deer this season. A third day of hunting on January 12, 2003 may occur, if necessary.

The agreement contains a clause that nothing in the agreement shall be construed so as to derogate from or abrogate any inherent, aboriginal, treaty, constitutional or legal rights of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte.

BUSINESS REGISTRATIONS

At the December 18, 2002 meeting, council approved the following business registrations:

1. Jumpin' Johnnies
2. Nation Petroleum
3. Pappineau's Gas Bar
4. Red Barn
5. Nice Guys Interiors

FIRST NATION'S GOVERNANCE ACT AND FIRST NATIONS FISCAL AND STATISTICAL MANAGEMENT ACT DEMONSTRATION

The Assembly of First Nations is in the process of organizing a demonstration on Parliament Hill in Ottawa against the First Nation Governance Act and First Nations Fiscal and Statistical Management Act.

I have covered these topics extensively in previous newsletters. The Nault suite of legislation is detrimental to our inherent right of self-determination and detrimental to our treaty rights. The proposed tax systems as options for the present could become a requirement in our fiscal relationship with the Federal Government in the future.

The First Nations Government Act Proposal being put forward by Minister Nault has serious policy and legal implications for First Nations. This process and proposed legislation is inconsistent with the inherent right of self-government as an existing right in section 35 of the Constitution Act, 1982. It is likely that any new legislation will reflect a delegated approach to self-government which contradicts recognition of the inherent right.

It is of serious concern that the Federal Government continues to promote Indian Act amendments despite the fact that First Nations and others have rejected this approach. The Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples, which engaged in extensive consultations, rejected "tinkering" with the Indian Act and recommended a renewal of the nation-to-nation relationship between the Crown and Aboriginal peoples through a treaty-making process. The consultation process proposed, in fact, directly contradicts and undermines the nation-to-nation relationship.

One of the most serious potential impacts of this proposal is the prejudice it may cause to Aboriginal and Treaty rights. Participation in the proposal may constitute or contribute to justification for the infringement of the inherent right of self-government. Moreover, First Nations need to be cognizant of the fact that it is a vehicle through which the Federal Government will seek to promote its own narrow view of Nation self-government.

The demonstration is being organized to take place in late January, 2003 or early February, 2003 after Parliament resumes. If you are available to travel to Ottawa to join other First Nations in the protest, please provide your name and telephone number to the receptionist at the Band Office so that travel arrangements can be made. The Chiefs will be in Ottawa during the protest period to lobby members of Parliament to oppose the proposed legislation.

TURTON PENN HIGHWAY

On December 6, 2002, Council met with representatives from Indian Affairs, the Ontario Native Affairs Secretariat, and the Minister of Transportation Ontario to continue discussions on a proposed settlement agreement for the Turton Penn Highway property in Shannonville.

The model under discussion requires that the Turton Penn Highway be returned to the control of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte. At the meeting, Council discussed the various methods for valuation of the settlement and interest factors. In addition, future infrastructure costs was discussed for this section of highway, which include; repairs to the Salmon River bridge and an assessment of traffic safety concerns for the York Road and Highway intersection at Shannonville.

Any agreement must be ratified by a vote of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte. Indian Affairs will consider a funding submission to ensure that we have a current address directory for off-reserve members. Many of our off-reserve member change their addresses and do not notify our membership office of their current address. This makes it difficult to obtain the level of consent needed to ratify settlements of this nature and future land claim settlements. Your assistance is appreciated in notifying our membership office of the addresses of our off-reserve membership.

BANK OF MONTREAL HOUSING LOAN GUARANTEE PROGRAM

As of December 1, 2002, Council has guaranteed a total of 16 loans in the amount totalling; $ 1,257,698.91. All of these loans are up to date and there have been no default payments.

RICHMOND LANDFILL SITE JUDICIAL REVIEW HEARING

The Judicial Review Hearing for the proposed Terms of Reference for the Richmond Landfill expansion will take place at Osgoode Hall in Toronto on January 27 – 28, 2003. Patrick Schindler is the lawyer representing the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte. Rick Lindgren is the lawyer acting for the Tyendinaga Township residents and was the lawyer for the residents in the Walkerton inquiry. I will be attending this hearing.

The November 6, 2002 edition of the Napanee Beaver indicates that Mayor David Remington of the Town of Napanee said the old waste should be taken out and there should be no further expansion. Remington said that the site is not right for it.

NON-INSURED HEALTH BENEFITS

The Federal Government spends 14 billion dollars per year for First Nations and Inuit Health Services. Ontario has approximately 25 percent of the First Nations population and receives 20.8 percent of the National budget. The National budget rate has been growing at a rate of 2.6 percent per year while spending is growing at 7.3 percent per year. The Federal Government must provide a 12 percent increase to maintain existing programs and benefits. This does not address new initiatives for mental health and enhanced non-insured health benefits.

First Nations levels of health status are far below that of the general population as a result of the current economic conditions under which First Nations people live and operate. Chronic funding shortfalls in the areas of health determinants such as housing, education and employment continue to contribute to the low levels of health status.

Stove Pipe funding approaches, with little or no human resources funding infrastructure results in First Nations having to make program cuts to maintain the basic essential services. On December 3, 2002, the Auditor General said the resources spent on preparing stacks of Federal reports could be better used to meet the urgent needs of First Nations communities. The Auditor General recommends a "massive overhaul" – yet another example of Federal Government inefficiencies inflicted upon First Nations.

ROMANOW HEALTH REI

The following points are an assessment of the report as it relates to the First Nations People:

- o Romanow made no recommendation for immediate funding and action to end our current health care crisis.
- o Romanow agrees that First Nations current tragic health status is directly related to socio-economic issues such as lack of income, education, and poor housing – ‘pervasive, poverty, persistent racism, and a legacy of colonialism’.”
- Romanow proposes $15 billion in new health funding over three years, but there is no assurance in how much of that funding will be delivered to First Nations.
- Romanow proposes pooling together all Aboriginal health funding, which may result in a shortfall for First Nations
- Romanow says the “challenge of moving forward will be in the hands of Aboriginal leaders, and the federal, provincial and territorial governments”. First Nations health is a Treaty Right, a human right, and part of the Federal Government’s historic obligation
- o First Nations health has only improved marginally since the inception of the 1979 Indian Health Policy, which continues to guide the First Nations and Inuit Health Branch (FNIHB)
- o FNIHB projects a funding shortage of $285 million in 2003-4 and a further shortage of $320 million in 2004-5.
- o We want solutions to tackle the issue of timely access to quality care for all Canadians, including those residing in rural and remote communities and for all Aboriginal peoples.
- o We want to be treated like the rest of Canadians. We want the same timely access to quality care.
- We want to move from Third World conditions to 21st century Canada. We are the First Peoples of the country and we want to share in the future of this country.

USING DEPA MENT – TIONAL WA

In late October, Councillor Christine Claus, Chris Maracle – Director of Housing, Parks and Band Property Management and I attended an “Affordable Housing Conference” in Toronto to accept a National Award in the Finance and Tenure category in recognition of the success of the community’s revolving loan program.

David Collette, Minister responsible for Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation who presented the award stated that the award recognizes excellence, dedication, hard work and accomplishments. He further stated this recognition demonstrates to others innovative ways and means of pursuing the development of affordable housing in Canada. This ~~was~~ truly a community award that we can all be proud of ~~Our~~ home owners make the program a success through their regular monthly payments. I applaud all those who have contributed to the success of the program.

Individual home ownership is approximately 85% within the community, which may be the highest percentage of home ownership in the country.

On January 31, 2003, the Tyendinaga Mohawk Council and staff will be reviewing the current point system ~~used~~ for scoring and subsequent allocation of mortgages in the spring. If you have any ideas, suggestions or concerns regarding the points system, please contact the Housing Department ~~as soon as~~ possible.

With the input and feedback of the community, we would like to see a good program even better.

On a related issue, we recently received notification that Huron Brant Drive North R-2000 rental home development will be awarded the 2002 national Energy Efficiency Award in the multiple houses category. The competition was open to all builders and developers from across the country.

On behalf of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Council, my congratulations to all contractors and subcontractors involved in the construction of the homes. Congratulations in particular to our Housing Department and construction crew who has overseen the design and construction of the majority of homes within the development.

The awards bring significant recognition to Tyendinaga and the talents and ability ~~of~~ our skilled trades people to build some of the most energy efficient houses in Canada. Again, congratulations to everyone involved with this project.

I hope that you find this report informative and I take this opportunity to wish everyone a healthy, successful and happy New Year!

MOTION #23: Moved by Velma Hill-Dracup, seconded by Christine Claus Whereas the current Specific Claims policy of the Government of Canada is fundamentally flawed by an inherent conflict of interest whereby Canada is Judge, Jury and Banker in regards to the settlement of specific land claims.

MEETING MINUTES

Whereas the chronic under-funding in the current process and lack of true commitment on the part of Canada to move expeditiously to settle claims has resulted in an enormous backlog that undermines the entire process.

Whereas for years First Nations and Canada worked together in the Joint Task Force and released a report developed in partnership for the establishment of an effective, fair and independent body for the settlement of claims.

Whereas Canada has ignored this report and has chosen to proceed unilaterally with legislation which will not create an independent, fair and effective process for the settlement of specific claims.

Whereas the new body will not be independent but will be wholly controlled by Canada, from the appointment of Commissioners and Tribunal members to the financial resources for research and settlement to the role of Justice in determining "valid" claims.

Whereas the new body will impose a settlement cap entrenched in the legislation for those claims going to the Tribunal which is blatantly unfair and prejudices each claim that goes to the Tribunal.

Whereas Canada despite the backlog of claims has committed no new dollars to the process; research funding is frozen at the current level; and in fact will cap settlement monies at the Tribunal level.

Whereas the new legislation will entrench the conflict of interest that still exists in the new body, Canada will still be Judge, Jury and Banker.

Whereas the new legislation would create a system worse than the current flawed system. The new system does not provide for public investigations, public reports or an appeal mechanism. The new system will allow the Minister to delay claims indefinitely without fair recourse for First Nations. The new system narrows the definition of what is a Specific Claim compared to the current policy leaving many First Nations claims out of the process. In fact the deficiencies in the proposed system are just too numerous to list.

Whereas the new body as proposed in the legislation does not meet the required criteria for an independent, fair and effective claims resolution body and cannot be made acceptable without a complete overhaul.

Therefore be it resolved that Tyendinaga Mohawk Council rejects this new legislation and the claims resolution body it describes and calls on Canada to withdraw this unfair and fundamentally flawed legislation.

Be it further resolved that MBQ Council calls on Canada to fulfill its fiduciary obligations and commit in a meaningful way to the settlement of outstanding breaches of lawful obligation by returning to dialogue with First Nations to seek a new fair, effective and independent process based on the Joint Task Force Report model which was developed bilaterally and cooperatively.

EVES GOVERNMENT CREATES MORE SPACES AND CHOICES FOR STUDENTS IN 2002

TORONTO – The Eves government created more opportunities for Ontarians of all ages in 2002 by expanding access to high-quality postsecondary education and training programs that students need to reach their full potential, Diane Cunningham, Minister of Training, Colleges and Universities said today.

"To prepare for the double cohort and the enrolment growth expected in the years ahead, the Eves government implemented the largest expansion of Ontario's colleges and universities since the 1960s," said Cunningham. "In addition, we have created more opportunities in 2002 to help Ontarians develop their skills and find work in their own communities."

As part of its comprehensive plan to accommodate the double cohort and provide more choices for students, the Ontario government implemented several initiatives in 2002, including:

- announcing funding for at least 13,000 additional new student spaces at high demand institutions. The government, together with its partners, invested $2.2 billion to create more than 79,000 new student spaces across the province;
- opening 23 SuperBuild projects at colleges and universities;
- breaking ground at the future site of the University of Ontario Institute of Technology, the first new public university in Ontario in 40 years;
- increasing operating grants for colleges and universities by $75 million, for a total commitment of $368 million by 2003-04 to accommodate more students;
- approving 34 new applied degree programs to expand the range of choices offered at 18 Ontario colleges;
- investing $40 million to renovate and upgrade existing buildings for more students at colleges and universities for a total of $337.5 million for facilities renewal since 1999;
- investing $10 million to update equipment and learning resources at Ontario colleges;
- investing an additional $16 million in operating grants for northern colleges and universities;
- responding to the preliminary recommendations of the Learning Opportunities Task Force by investing up to $5 million to provide supports to college and university students who have disabilities; and
- setting up a separate charter for the governance of the province's colleges through the Ontario Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology Act, 2002.

"As students make their decisions about postsecondary education over the coming weeks, we will continue to work with colleges and universities to ensure that every willing and qualified student finds a place in a postsecondary program," added Cunningham.

To ensure Ontarians have the skills to keep pace with the new realities of today's global marketplace, the government's initiatives for skills training included:

- announcing 12 new bridge-training projects to help internationally trained immigrants quickly enter professions and high demand skilled trades, bringing total investment to more than $15 million;
- announcing a first-year commitment of $5 million from the Apprenticeship Enhancement Fund to modernize training facilities in the college system;
- investing $3.7 million in the new Apprenticeship Training Program to help more people become skilled workers and more than $1.3 million through the Journey person Updating Program to help 3,500 certified skilled workers learn new skills; and
- investing $25 million annually by 2005-06 to expand apprenticeship and training and help the government achieve its goal of doubling the number of new entrants to apprenticeship programs.

"The skills of our workers have played an important part in the creation of over one million jobs in our province since 1995," Cunningham said. "In 2002 we strengthened our commitment to province-wide access to leading-edge apprenticeship and training programs. These programs help communities across the province to remain competitive and provide services to help Ontarians access the training they need where, when and how they need it."

Water Samples

Happy 2003!! I hope everyone is starting out with a great new year.

As most of you know, I have been taking water samples in the community since September 23, 2002.

I started off with approximately 693 homes to take samples from and now have approximately 160 left.

It's hard to catch people at home and with such a small number left to be sampled I was hoping I could get some help from the community. If your home has not yet been sampled please feel free to call into the Health Centre and set up an appointment at your convenience. If you do not wish to have a sample taken from your home please phone in and advise me and I will remove your name from the list. If you have however had a sample taken from your home in 2002, please keep in mind that I need to take two more samples for stats purposes or three consecutively in a row. I look forward to coming to your home.

Mr. Michael Mitchell
Executive Director
Centre for Nation Building and Governance
Mohawk Nation Territory
RR#3, Cornwall Island, Ontario
K6H 5R7

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I am writing in response to the community gun safety surveys that have been conducted jointly by Mohawk Councils and the Canadian Firearms Centre in Tyendinaga, Wahta and Akwesasne. In particular, I wish to comment on the results of the surveys and their implications for the development of firearms arrangements among Mohawk communities.

It is clear from the survey results that community members overwhelmingly support comprehensive gun control measures, including licensing and registration, safety training, safe storage of firearms and enforcement of gun control laws.

The survey results also draw attention to other, related themes with which I agree. First, they emphasize community aspirations for a greater role in firearms programs and service delivery. Consistent with the federal government's commitment to the principles of Gathering Strength, I support steps that lead to greater community responsibility and accountability for firearms safety and control. Second, the results highlight the notion of program and service delivery by and for Mohawk people. I share the communities' views that local institutions, structures and processes have an important role to play in firearms administration and these can help shape a creative approach to firearms safety and control at the community level. Third, they speak to the unique situation of Mohawk people in Canada, including their Aboriginal and treaty rights. These rights must be respected in the process of crafting the most appropriate arrangements over the short and long terms.

Together, the results of all three surveys point towards a broader Mohawk vision of community gun safety that also includes local firearms laws. To this end, an outline of a draft Mohawk firearms law titled, "Haudenosaunee Law on the Use and Control of Firearms and Weapons" (dated October 29, 2002), was presented by Mohawk Nation representatives to the Canadian Firearms Centre on December 2, 2002.

In general, the draft law addresses primarily community-based, administrative issues that entail practical developments and a role for local institutions and processes. I am encouraged, therefore, by the focus and direction of this initiative. Accordingly, I have asked my officials to work with the Centre for Nation Building and Governance and with the communities in order to advance its goals and in a way that enhances the safety objectives of the Firearms Act.

In this context, I wish to emphasize that we must satisfy national firearms safety standards. In addition, the initiative will require interdepartmental and intergovernmental cooperation and collaboration, including the participation of the provincial Chief Firearms Officer.

I am committed, therefore, to a process that is constructive, sensitive to a range of viewpoints and considerations, and that results in practical strategies that lead to improvements in community safety.

Finally, I note that the survey results indicate that there are some community members who have not yet obtained a firearms license or gun registration certificate. In his news release of January 8, 2003, Minister Cauchon stated,

"Neither I nor, I believe, my provincial colleagues feel that it is in the public interest to prosecute those who are taking steps to obtain a license and to register their firearms. I would encourage those who have yet to obtain a license or registration certificate to do so as soon as possible."

I trust that provincial authorities will exercise discretion and sensitivity in the administration of the firearms legislation.

The survey results demonstrate that Mohawk communities are committed to improving their safety and well-being. I look forward to our working together to achieve a Mohawk model of community gun safety.

Yours sincerely,

Gary Webster
Chief Executive Officer
Canadian Firearms Centre

EDUCATION

TRUSTEE'S REPORT New Year 2003

The year end and holiday season has brought time for visiting and relaxation. On TV and in a book I received for Christmas I came across some stories for the New Year.

A television host was interviewing Leonard Cohen, a poet and songwriter from Montreal. The interviewer observed that Cohen's Writing showed a pessimistic outlook. The poet responded that he was not like that ALL of the time. Then he added, explaining his approach to life: "You have to keep your eyes open. Otherwise you could bump into things and hurt yourself." Being aware of the hazards in our environment, the things we might bump into, like brick walls and careless drivers, is a basic responsibility of being alive. Cohen takes responsibility for the hurts that result when he doesn't take care where he is going.

A characterless mindful of where he is going is Nanabush who appears often in Anishinabe (Ojibway) legends. In the story I read this week Nanabush was looking in a water hole for something to satisfy his hunger on a cold winter day. Quite unexpectedly, Skunk came along and gave him food. Skunk also gave him a gift, a flute to attract moose and limited power to kill them. On his way home Nanabush ignored Skunk's warning to take care using the gift and he zapped a tree and a stone, blowing them apart just to see if he could.

When he arrived home he tried out the flute and sure enough, the moose came right into his lodge and started out again. Nanabush tried to zap them but his power had been used up carelessly and the moose walked away. Nanabush's wife managed to break a leg of the last moose and they had food for a while but before long they were hungry again and Nanabush's wife was scolding him for being foolish.

Nanabush went back to the water hole and Skunk reappeared. Nanabush confessed how he had wasted his gift. Skunk took pity on him and again gave him power to attract and kill moose. This time Nanabush's wife helped him to exercise better judgement and they had food to last them through the winter. For this the woman said "Truly, we have been greatly blessed".

At this time of year students are making decisions that require them to look where they are going, and consider how to use their gifts wisely. High school students are finalizing course choices for next semester and graduating students are making application to college. (University applications were due before Christmas.)

Now that programs and options are computerized parents and guardians who still use pencil and paper may feel they can't help much with sorting things out. Even if you can't scan a computer program, you can still help your son or daughter to avoid bumping into things. Ask them what comes they are thinking of taking, and how this fits in with diploma requirements. Get them to tell you what they like about different colleges or training options.

The important thing to remember about "counselling" a teen-ager (or anyone else, for that matter), is that you can't make up their minds for them. When they tell you that they could do one thing or another, the purpose is not to have YOU tell them what is good for them, even if you have a well-founded opinion. The words "You should..." have a tendency to raise hackles and break off communication. When someone lays out the possibilities for you, and talks about where they lead, they are more likely to assess the consequences for themselves. Of course, it doesn't do any harm to ask students to explain things for their slow, old parents, like what type of science you need to get into a health career, and at what grade you need to get on that track.

Individual interests are important in making choices, as are past experiences and successes. Sometimes, though, when the path ahead is very hazy, young people need to grope about, just trying not to bump into things and get bruised too badly. Or they need growing time before seriously setting out on a career path.

Even when we make choices that don't work out, most of the time we can retrace our steps and, Like Nanabush, get another chance to do things right.

Skennen kowa. Great Peace to you.

THE BREASTFEEDING CIRCLE

What is thrush and Will I have to stop breastfeeding if my baby or I get it?

Yeast infections or thrush are fairly common. There is no need to stop breastfeeding. Your baby will continue to get the most benefits from all the easily absorbed nutrients in breastmilk. There are several things that you can do to eliminate yeast or Candida which sometimes, but not always, shows up as white spots in the baby's mouth which don't hurt him or her, and shooting, internal pain within the breast usually after the second week of breastfeeding, which doesn't go away during the feed. Sometimes, baby has a diaper rash also caused by thrush. It is more common in Moms with diabetes or on the birth control pill. It must be treated in both the mother and the baby and dietary changes are NECESSARY to keep it from recurring.

Often, yeast occurs after antibiotic use. If you had a caesarian you have had antibiotics which knock out any possible bacterial infections but also all the good bacteria in your gut, allowing an overgrowth of Candida yeast to set in. At any time after antibiotic use, to prevent this overgrowth, it is important to take LACTOBACILLUS ACIDOPHILUS OR MULTI- available in health food stores or the health food section of big supermarkets. It must be refrigerated. If you like plain yogurt, you can eat a lot instead. Make sure it has extra lactobacillus added.

Yeast feeds on sugar and simple carbohydrates, such as white bread. It is important to eliminate pop, desserts. Eat fruit instead of drinking it. Eat a lot of vegetables and other healthy foods. Get rest and reduce stress as much as possible.

Your caregiver may prescribe antifungal medication for both of you. Gentian Violet is another possible treatment and available at the health center. Remember yeast will recur if you continue eating or drinking things with sugar. It's best not to use soothers while nursing, but if you do make sure to boil them, and don't express milk to save while you have thrush.

BREASTFEEDING BOOK OF THE MONTH: LALECHE LEAGUE: THE WOMANLY ART OF BREASTFEEDING This book answers all of your breastfeeding questions including how to maintain a good milk supply, how to pump and store human milk, how to recognize and overcome common breastfeeding problems, tips for the working mother, current research on the benefits of breastfeeding. It is available to borrow from the drop-in library. See you there. Happy Holidays!

TYENDINAGA YOUTH TABLE HOCKEY TOURNAMENT

2002 Norm Maracle / Tyendinaga Police Service

This year's edition of the Youth Table Hockey was held on Monday, December 30, 2002, at the community center. Everyone had a great time and won at least one door prize, with a couple winning several prizes.

In the grade 3 to 5 group it ended up being a family affair, with John Maracle winning the "A" championship and his sister Nicole Maracle winning the "B" side of the group. Both are first time winners in the tournament.

In the older group, we had a "three-peat" winner. Logan Wagar once again won the "A" championship. This is his third year in a row as the champion in this tournament. It is also Logan's swan song, as he will be moving on to grade nine next year. Congratulations to Logan. Our "B" champion this year in the grade 6 to 8 group was Josh Adams. Josh is a two-time winner of the B side in the tournament, and he too will be moving on to grade nine next year.

Both our "A" champions received small portable black & white televisions.

Thanks to all who came out to play and also to those parents that volunteered all day. From those that officiated the games, to those that prepared and served the lunches, thanks you. See you next year.

POSTCARDS FROM THE VISION QUEST by Joseph E Brant

Inferiority & Other Flies In the Ointment

When I was young and nineteen. I said to myself, I want a music business degree and if I have to sit through a couple religion classes to get one, so be it. Now let me tell you something. I learned so much through those classes...it was craziness. Like many of us, I grew up in a household that was pretty well devoid of religion; we prayed before Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and also when someone died. My university though, had a religious affiliation. A private school, because it is not financially supported by government, can enact any policy within its mandate that their students must adhere to. Philosophically, in my case it meant that I would get the same education as at any other school but in a religious environment. Economically, it meant piles of money came to the school from the denomination's coffers with the rest (at private schools there is a whole lot of 'rest') came from tuition fees. The great thing about my school and its imposed religion classes, then, was that the professors taught each lesson to us as though we were in a history class. So there was no 'we believe this, don't we?' or 'we believe that' (wink, nudge) that I found more in the business classes where those now-sideline issues weren't so contentious, except to me. It opened a door to understanding and learning that I think – no, that I just know – I wouldn't have gained anywhere else. It forced me to think of myself as an outsider in a way that was uniquely my own.

Sure, as native people we are always a little on the outside. On the reserve, though, we are the majority and while we couldn't possibly survive without ever leaving the territory to, say, visit the mall or KFC or a Laundromat (where we are still minorities; and why, by the way, is this computer forcing me to capitalize the word Laundromat?), trust me to know it's different when you're forced to live in a dorm building, share a living space with at least one other person, shower with everybody, and you are the only brown skinned boy with hair, cheekbones, skin tone and big brown eyes that people have never before in your life complimented until now. Yes, this school was literally ninety-something percent Caucasian.

I mentioned that I felt like an outsider in this environment. I soon discovered that a majority of students, when off campus or when they made their decision to attend this school felt, in my opinion, as though they were renegades to their hometown peers by opting a school where their beliefs wouldn't be compromised, such that we'd all heard regarding "Animal House"-style publicly funded and greater populated schools. All staff and faculty members had to be Christian, which, to most of us, sounds a little unjust but, truth is, we all freely choose our school, right? Surprisingly to me, a solid majority of students chose it almost entirely because of the religious environment. A very plentiful minority of us, though, just wanted to get the degree and get a job. I'd never connected religion with education up until that point – ever. Well, unless you count those visits we got at Quinte Mohawk School from pastors and reverends that, in hindsight, appear to have been more politically missionary-ish than anything else. Especially given there was so little 'spiritual' balance, though I am proud to admit that I was the only person in my religion class who could recite the books of the Old Testament in song, the way that we'd learned in grade six.

Anyway, it was in one of my business classes that I met Anna. I picked up this course a few days into a new semester – macroeconomics and I don't know how I remember that – and was instructed to join one of the workgroups of three or four that had already been formed. In one group I saw a brown skinned girl with hair, cheekbones, skin tone and big brown eyes that resembled my own. I thought to myself, how in the world did another Native person end up here? She later told me that, at the same moment, she looked at me and wondered, how in the world did another Hispanic person end up here?

It was as though we'd known each other all of our lives, these two people of entirely different races whose uniquenesses and idiosyncrasies were so common. She's a Mexican who was born and raised in Texas; and I, a Native American born and raised in Canada. We went to a local Pow Wow (fyi: I looked everywhere on the internet for a conclusive suggestion as to how one should spell the word "powwow" – that was dictionary.com – and I settled on double caps separated with no hyphen but am still not entirely comfortable) where I admitted that I'd forgotten most of the dances I learned in grade four. We turned the TV to that all Spanish cable channel and her guesses were as good as mine as to what the actors were saying. We were inferior in all the same ways!

I found as well that many of our differences were examples of our culture than individual oddities. Anna has a very passionate and risk taking personality. She can fall out of love today and, as soon as there'll be a tomorrow, she'll find someone new. And just move on. .or out of state (she lives in Georgia now). Me, on the other hand, I just know that every attractive fool who dares to smile at me won't be willing to wholeheartedly adapt to at least a part time life on Tyendinaga (Canada, at least) or raise fully Mohawk children. Or put community before self. Or fix my car if it breaks down. Or just buy me a new one. This, by the way, really is my moment-to-moment response to a stranger's glance and smile from across a room. Regardless...

I've always known that should the bottom fall out of my American journey, I can always pack up, move home and regroup. That bilingual stop sign on the York Rd is like a palisade that safely stores my home and family. Anna, and many non-Native people aren't lucky enough to have been born and raised on a plot of land that is as comfortable to me as the house I was raised in. With no security blanket or safety net in some far away place, people look for other substitutes and, god bless 'em, they find some. They look for and get not always what they want but what they need, and I've learned from that. My fellow students in university chose their school perhaps because they needed that environment. Anna's currently in a relationship that, pardon my bluntness, secures her emotionally the way her blood family cannot.

And me? I figured this much: if I resented religious instruction in grade school and college without balanced instruction of say, our own creation story, it behooved me not to sulk and whine about the injustice but to look into our own cultural past – even though there'd be no grade report card at the end – and, more importantly, look into the world we lived in then that facilitated that circumstance. Unfortunately, in this day of picaresque storytelling, it was a disappointment to learn that nobody is wholly evil and no one is entirely righteous – but was a good lesson unto itself

It is a relief, though, to know that in the real world, a messed up, confusing, thought-provoking tale is more humanizing, and certainly more real, than a happy ending.

Diocese to raise $1.1 million

BY FRANCIE HEALY

Anglicans in the Diocese of Ontario have been asked to pay $1.1 million of a $25 million settlement fund to Canadian aboriginal people abused in Residential Schools. Quarterly payments are to begin in March and continue for five years.

The money—all $25 million—will go to victims and not to litigation. The "how" of it—where the diocese will get the portion they will pay—will be one of the topics under discussion at regional meetings this month.

Although the diocese has not yet officially committed to its part of the agreement-in-principle, announced in November between the federal government and General Synod, a special synod to be held Jan. 25 is likely to advise Bishop George Bruce to sign.

All dioceses (besides the 11 which were sued) are asked to sign the agreement.

Synod council was briefed on the agreement in November. Clergy of the diocese met in December with Archdeacon Jim Boyles, General Secretary of General Synod, to hear details.

Many clergy will also attend meetings with parish wardens, lay representatives to synod, and anyone who is interested, on Jan. 7, 7:30 p.m. at St. Luke's, Kingston; Jan. 8, 7 p.m., at Trinity Church, Brockville; Jan. 9, 7 p.m., at St. John's, Madoc; and Jan. 14, 7 p.m. at St. Mary Magdalene, Napanee.

The special Jan. 25 synod will meet at St. George's Cathedral to vote "yes" or "no" to signing the agreement.

Canon Geoff Jackson, Diocesan Executive Officer, expects most will vote "yes", as there was no dissension among the clergy at their December meeting.

"There was a good spirit in the room," he said. "There was the feeling that this was a good agreement, that it lets us carry on with our lives."

He expects there will be many questions at the regional meetings, particularly how the diocese will raise the $1.1 million. Ultimately, the synod council advisory committee will work with diocesan centre staff to work out the final details of how this will be done.

"It's likely that different sources of income will be used," said Mr. Jackson. "This might be from the sale of assets, a bank mortgage, increased apportionment."

However, he added, some congregations are already encountering financial difficulty "and we don't want to add to that burden, if possible." Another consideration will be the new strategic plan for the diocese. "We don't want to jeopardize that," he said.

He sees the meetings and the agreement as a positive turning point. "We want to ensure every parishioner plays a part in the raising of funds," he said, "because each of us is involved in the process of healing and reconciliation."

North of 7

We have taken their very heart, and now we must share the pain Abuse is not just about sexual depravity; it's about reducing persons to objects and taking away their humanity

BY TERRY BENNETT

I once lived and worked well-north of Highway 7 I grew up on those rocky shores, working and playing beneath the windswept pines I remember, as a little boy, seeing the canoes of aboriginal people from Christian Island as they ventured among the 30,000 islands. They travelled to cottages selling hand-crafted boxes of birchbark and cedar

In 1985, my first parish incorporated the Spanish River Reserve. I was asked to minister the faith of Jesus Christ among Ojibway people It was my first deep, and personal encounter with aboriginal people It was also one of the most meaningful experiences of my ministry.

It all began with a visit to a 90-year-old matriarch named Sarah Owl. Sarah was one of the eldest surviving students of the Anglican residential school in Sault Ste Marie The Shingwauk, as it was known, took hundreds of Ojibway children out of their homes and gave them a modern education, societal values, and Christian faith.

Sarah Owl was a devout Christian who had raised 12 children, nearly 90 grandchildren and (at the time we met), had lost count of more than 100 great-grandchildren. She was one of the most prayerful people I have ever met I understood why many came to her for counsel as a respected elder Her words were always measured and loving I also understood why she was never alone and why people waited to see her

Sarah shared with me only a brief glimpse into the past and her experience of a residential school. I sensed pain and loss but also an incredible ability to forgive and to embrace the present.

Our visits were a gift. I cannot even begin to describe the radiant beauty that emanated from her. Sarah Owl changed all my thoughts about native people. She made me wish that my faith and life would find such depth and holiness.

The death of Sarah Owl filled me with a sorrow I never imagined. I was honoured to be asked to speak during the mourning period. Her son, the chief, was my lay reader He and I prepared for the bishop to take the funeral that gathered hundreds of Ojibway people

The following summer, E B Eddy in Espanola flushed chemicals into the Serpent River, killing all the fish I tried to get Chief Owl to sue the company for their loss of fishing that year. Sarah might have stood and been heard, but most of the tribal elders were afraid and resigned to these acts of destruction. They had no heart to stand up and contest their fate with corporate Canada

Sarah Owl is never far from my thoughts. The Anglican Church is now hoping to settle the legacy of our residential schools. I know the cost to you and me will not be popular We have placed it in the past and no longer wish to hear about use and abuse The Serpent River reminds me of what we have done to aboriginal people We have taken their very heart and given them an abiding sense of hopelessness.

Abuse is not just about sexual depravity. It is about reducing persons to objects. It is about taking away the humanity of a people as well as their pride You and I know that money will not change the past. But money will provide professional help to victims and programs for their families.

Our settlement, together with the Government of Canada, says to native people that we are not only sorry, but we share the pain of your past in our walk of faith. Our basic beliefs in Jesus Christ may never change, but our church can, and must. We, the church, are people who seek the love of God for all our brothers and sisters in Christ.

Together we can reconcile the past and build for the future.

Indeed, unless we can give and forgive, there is no future.

(The illustration is by Teresa Altman, an Ojibwa from Walpole Island First Nation. It is from the book Dancing the Dream: The First Nations and the church in Partnership, Joyce Carlson, editor, 1995, Anglican Book Centre, ISBN 1-55126-105-7; available in the Church Bookroom, $11.99)

- The list of ingredients in tobacco smoke includes more than 4000 different chemical compounds. More than 50 of these substances are known as carcinogens.

The effect of second-hand smoke on adults includes:

- Lung, nasal sinus, breast and cervical cancer
- Heart disease
- Stroke
- Asthma
- Bronchitis
- Pneumonia

Children who are forced to breathe second-hand smoke have higher rates of:

- Asthma
- Ear infections
- Respiratory problems

- Pregnant women who smoke put their fetus at risk for low birth weight and pre-term birth, chronic pulmonary disease, long-term growth and development, and cognitive and behavioural problems.
- Restaurant and bar staff who are non-smokers are three times more likely to develop lung cancer than other smokers.

There is no safe level of exposure to second-hand smoke,

A Smoke-Free By-law is Needed Because...

- Tobacco use kills around 45 000 Canadians annually, including 12 000 Ontarians.
- Hastings and Prince Edward Counties have been declared a heart disease "hot-spot" because the incidence of heart disease in this area is significantly higher than the provincial average.
- Hastings and Prince Edward Counties residents have a significantly higher rate of death due to lung cancer than other Ontario residents.

Belleville 'sSmoking in Public Places By-law

The Smoking in Public Places By-law prohibits smoking in certain public places in order to protect the residents of the City of Belleville from the health hazards and discomfort of second-hand smoke. As of May 1, 2003 the following establishments in Belleville will be 100% smoke-free:

- Restaurants
- Arenas
- Billiard Halls
- School buses
- Bars and pubs
- Bowling Alleys
- Limousines and taxis
- Private clubs when holding public events
- Bingo Halls will be required to build a Designated Smoking Room (DSR) by May 1, 2004 which occupies less than 50% of the floor space of the bingo hall.

What Can You Do?

- Go out and enjoy the smoke-free environment. Try out a new restaurant or pub, go bowling or play billiards.
- Voice your support to your councillors and mayors, as well as managers and servers. Congratulate them for making their community healthier.
- Report violations of the by-law by calling 966-5513 ext. 600. You can leave a message 24 hours a day, seven days a week.
- Spread the word and talk to friends and colleagues about the by-law and encourage them to experience the smoke-free environment.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LARGEST WEDDING SHOW IN THE AREA PLANNED FOR MARCH 2003

The Wally Dever Arena will be the setting for the largest wedding show of its kind in the Quinte area. Over 90 vendors are expected to be on hand Sunday, March 30, 2003 for this one day event. Anxious brides-to-be will be able to discuss all of their wedding day needs with a variety of local businesses involved in the wedding industry. Businesses will be able to get some valuable face-to-face contact with hundreds of potential customers.

Taking place that day as well is the Grand Prize Draw. One lucky bride/groom-to-be will walk away with a great prize package that will help make their wedding day that much more special. Proceeds of the draw will go to the United Way of Quinte.

Local entrepreneur, Tracey Clarke, who is organizing the event says, "The Quinte area really needs something like this. There are a few smaller shows in the area, but nothing of this size or with this variety of businesses involved. A business that might benefit from this sort of show is welcome to participate. Booth spaces are still available."

Admission will be free to the public. Some businesses may be holding seminars throughout the day and lots of free information will be handed out.
