TYENDINAGA

Feud over funding

By JACK RAFTER
Whig-Standard Staff Writer

A member of the Tyendinaga band council and an official of the regional office of Indian Affairs have both denounced an allegation that band council members are collecting more pay than they are entitled to.

The charge was made by a member of a group on the Tyendinaga reserve called the Fundamental Indian Rights Movement. One of its founding members, Shawn Brant, made the charge in a list of complaints about council business that he released last week.

Mr. Brant noted that this is not the first time a similar complaint has been made. Council's composition was questioned last year by Harold Brant, a non-resident band member living in Napanee. Harold Brant lodged an appeal to have the results of the band council election of Nov. 30, 1991, overturned on the grounds that the Tyendinaga reserve is entitled to a 12-member band council, not just the current five — consisting of the chief and four councillors.

The federal Indian Affairs department reviewed Harold Brant's complaint and found his claim to be correct. However, the department recommended to band chief Earl Hill and council that they seek an exemption to the requirement rather than overturn the election.

The Fundamental Indian Rights Movement claims, however, that the Indian Affairs department has been funding 12 council positions.

Shawn Brant told The Whig-Standard that the current five members simply "divide up" the funding intended for a 12-member slate.

But band councillor R. Donald Maracle flatly rejects this claim.

"That is totally incorrect," said Councillor Maracle who is himself an employee of the Indian branch. "The department's funding formulas don't work that way at all. There are a lot of different formulas."

Doug Forbes, district director of Indian Affairs, described the allegation as "absolutely ludicrous."

One of the main reasons the band asked for the four-member exemption was to help cut administrative costs and conserve funds for the delivery of services to the community.

"The exact opposite is true," Mr. Forbes said. "This is helping them to reduce expenditures. The reality is that the council is achieving a savings that they are passing on to the members of the band."

In any event, he said, funding of bands is not based on the numbers of sitting councillors. Lump-sum funding is given to bands to run their governments, he said. No council can get extra money because of its number of councillors.

Attention News Editors:

FREE VIDEOS HELP ONTARIO VIEWERS CELEBRATE SENIORS' MONTH

TORONTO, June 3 /CNW/ - June is Seniors' Month -- a time when communities throughout Ontario celebrate the achievements, independence, creativity and wellness of our older residents.

To help promote the celebrations, the Office for Seniors' Issues is making available to community cable-TV programmers a series of high-quality, information videos that may be borrowed free of charge. They are designed to demonstrate how family members, professional service-providers, merchandisers and seniors themselves can enhance the daily lives of Ontario's older adults.

These engaging videos can be shown alone or they can serve as the basis for informative, on-camera discussions.

- PRIME TIMES (10 minutes)

Outlines the consumer needs of older adults. Provides practical advice for making goods, services and shopping environments more appealing and more accessible to seniors.

- BETWEEN THE YEARS (13.07 minutes)

A heartwarming look at special relationships developed between children and older adults in schools, communities and institutional settings. An excellent tool for developing programs that bring the generations together.

- THE FACTS ON AGING QUIZ (26.37 minutes)

What you always wanted to know about normal aging but were afraid to ask. (Of special interest to health care professionals.)

- LONELINESS AND THE OLDER ADULT (10 minutes)

- AGE: THE ADVANTAGES (10 minutes)

How to meet the needs of the senior consumer. Includes profiles of the new generation of older adults and tips on marketing to this growing market.

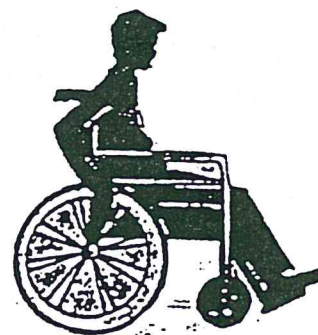

To borrow any of these videos, or for ideas about how to create informative programming around them, please contact the Educational Resources Unit, Office for Seniors' Issues, Ministry of Citizenship.

Ce communiqué est aussi disponible en français.

THE WHITE EAGLE AND THE WHITE BEAR

This is a Legend.

Long, long ago there where two friends, a White Eagle and a White Bear, who lived in a deep, deep valley. The valley was so deep that the sun only shone in the valley for a couple of hours each day. Because there wasn't much sun light, the valley creatures were cold most of the time.

The White Eagle and the White Bear one day decided that they were tired of being cold and as they were the most powerful creatures in the valley, they were going to catch the sun when it went to sleep on the western mountain and bring it to the valley floor.

The White Eagle and the White Bear, who also had a long fluffy tail, discussed their plan and the White Bear said that he would go first to try to catch the sun when it went to sleep that night. So when the sun rested for the night the White Bear with the long fluffy tail climbed the mountain to catch the sun. When the White Bear got to where the sun was sleeping he didn't know how he was going to hold onto it and climb down the mountain at the same time. The White Bear decided that he would wrap his long tail around the sun and he would still be able to climb down the mountain safely. The only problem was that when the White Bear got excited he began to hiccup and as he started down the mountain he became more and more excited which caused him to hiccup uncontrollably. All of this hiccupping awoke the sun who realized that someone was trying to kidnap him so he began to glow as hot as he could. The sun glowed so hot that he burnt the long fluffy tail off of the White Bear and also singed all of the Bear's fur except for a small patch on the his chest. The Bear, now Black, yelping loudly, raced as fast as he could for the lake to cool his body down and the sun returned to his sleep on the western mountain.

In the morning the White Eagle saw his friend and laughed hilariously because his fur had been singed. The White Eagle then told the Bear that he would go that night and do the job correctly. That night as the sun slept on the western mountain the White Eagle flew up to the top of the mountain and decided that he would place the sun on his back until he reached the ground. With the sun on his back the White Eagle began to fly back to the bottom of the valley but the powerful beating of the White Eagle's wings awoke the sun who knew what was happening. The sun began to glow as hot as he could again. The heat was so intense that it burnt the feathers off the head of the White Eagle, leaving his head red and also singed all of his body feathers. The Eagle was in such great pain that he dove straight for the lake to cool his body and the sun returned to the western mountain to sleep.

This is the story of how the Black Bear and the Turkey Vulture came in to being.

This is what I can remember.

JUNO MEMOIR

'Tis' the sixth month of the year and memories abound
 Funny, happy events long past
 Of a sister, who was born in June
 And a grandson, who left us all too soon.
 Happy times and sad events
 Entwines throughout our life,
 No one can claim an even keel
 With nary a bit of strife.
 My sister had such winsome ways
 And a heart of gold,
 She also had a phobia
 That could make her blood run cold.
 One sunday she prepared some scrumptious fare
 For hubby and children, out somewhere
 She opened her door, and sunning himself lay a garter snake
 That gave her such a scare...
 She jumped up on the table
 Food and dishes flew all around
 Crying, still perched up there, amid the mess
 Was the way that she was found.

Kristopher could talk your ear off
 Never was he mute,
 This little guy was sharp as a tack
 And a copycat to boot.
 He spent some time in hospital
 And for his homecoming, we yearned
 The very day that happened
 He tried on us, every tactic he had learned.
 First he refused to eat,
 Spit his food out in a stream
 Threw himself down on the floor
 Kicked his feet and screamed.
 We could not believe our eyes!
 Was this our darling one?
 Then he up and told us
 'I'll run away from home.'
 To this end, he crawled under a chair
 And promptly went to sleep.
 We realized he had shown us
 His copycat trait was running mighty deep.

Native Participation in the 1993 Canada Summer Games

Did you know that Kamloops is hosting the 1993 Canada Summer Games?

Did you know that this is an important event for First Nations people?

We have never been involved with the Games.

The City of Kamloops bid for the Games in December, 1988 and the dream became reality in April, 1989. The Games begin on August 8th and conclude on August 21st

My name is Arnold Baptiste and I am employed by the Interior Indian Friendship Society (IIFS) as Canada Games Coordinator. There is a Native Participation Committee among the units of the Canada Games Society. The Committee consists of the Whispering Pines Indian Band, the Kamloops Indian Band and the IIFS.

The Whispering Pines Indian Band will present their annual rodeo at their rodeo site. Included are: Little Britches, team roping, Canadian all-girls, B.C. barrel racers, old timers, heavy horse pull, high school rodeo, open rodeo and Little Chuckwagon races.

The Kamloops Indian Band is involved with the Canada Summer Games archery event. Archery and rugby will take place on the Kamloops Indian Band land.

The Band will be presenting their annual pow-wow. They are offering volleyball, slow-pitch, golf and lahal tournaments.

The IIFS is involved in three events. A reception, which takes place on August 8th for Canada Summer Games VIPs, will feature Native foods. Chef Andrew George, Vancouver restaurant owner who recently won an Olympic gold medal in the culinary competition in Paris, France is in charge of preparing the menu.

Traditional Native Games will be played by teams coming from as far away as Ontario and the Yukon. Shinny (hockey), knobby or double ball, earth ball and Native basketball (Bannock ball) will be played. There may even be a demonstration of traditional games from the Yukon team. The traditional games take place on the weekend of August 14th and 15th, when some 2000 athletes, coaches and managers leave, and 2300 more arrive.

A Native Pavilion at Riverside Park will feature cultures from the Yukon, Northwest Territories, B.C. (largest representation) and Ontario. The cultures rotate once every four days during August 8th to the 21st.

At present, there are plans to station the Native Pavilion in a log home structure and to have teepees as well. There will be static displays, theatre groups, traditional dancers with drum groups, musicians, story-tellers, poetry reading, Native curriculum, business sponsorships, marketing booths, arts and crafts and a taste test booth of traditional foods.

There is still time for entrance of teams for the traditional games, and more participants for the Native Pavilion.

I will also need financial assistance. The Canada Games Society has given funding to the Native Participation Committee. I have developed a budget for the two IIFS events: i) Traditional Games and ii) the Native Pavilion. The Traditional Native Foods: Reception is being funded by the City of Kamloops. The funding I have received falls short and I am looking for donations.

If you want to participate in the 1993 Canada Summer Games, or if you have questions, you can contact me at (604) 376-1296.

Native Participation

in the
1993 Canada Summer Games

August 8 - 21, 1993

1. Traditional Native Games

This event will rediscover traditional games that Native people have been playing for centuries. There will be over a dozen teams representing their band or region. The four games are:

- 1) Knobby/Double Ball
- 2) Shinny (Hockey)
- 3) Earth Ball
- 4) Native Basketball (Bannock Ball)

The location of the games will be at Riverside Park and the Rugby field beside the Kamloops Exhibition Association (KXA) on August 14th and 15th.

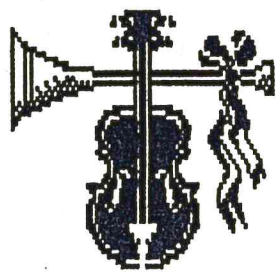

2. Native Pavilion

There will be four to six cultures represented on a four day rotation until the conclusion of the Games. Cultures represented will come from B.C., Yukon, Alberta, Ontario and the U.S. Performers will be musicians, theatre groups and traditional dancers with drum groups. There will also be static displays, business sponsorship and Native curriculum. There are plans to house the Native Pavilion in a log house structure with two to three teepees outside the Native Pavilion. The Native Pavilion will be located at Riverside Park from August 8th to the 21st.

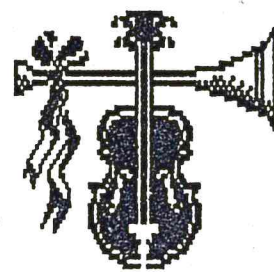

3. Traditional Native Foods - Reception

There will be representations of foods from B.C., Alberta and the Northwest Territories. This reception is for the VIP's of the Games. The menu will be planned by Andrew George, recipient of the 1992 Culinary Olympic Gold Medal. The feast will take place at the KXA on August 8th.

If you are interested in participating or need more information, you can call Arnold Baptiste at (604) 376-1296.
