At the AFN meeting, the Chiefs were informed that an actuary contracted by the Government of Canada, estimated the amount of the compensation due to the eligible veterans to be $120,000 each. Canada is only offering $ 20,000 each. The Assembly has left the decision to each veteran to decide whether to accept the offer.

First Nations Governance Act – Bill C-61

FNGA is the short name for Bill C-61, An act respecting leadership selection, administration and accountability of Indian bands, and to make related amendments to other Acts. This Bill was tabled by the Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs, Robert Nault in the Parliament of Canada on June 14, 2002 and has passed first reading.

The Standing Committee on Aboriginal Affairs, and Northern Development and Natural Resources will hold hearings across the country this fall. The Committee will be able to suggest major changes before the Bill is passed in Parliament.

Council has approved to hold a general council meeting on November 21, 2002 at 7 p.m. at the Community Centre to discuss the First Nations Governance Act. The Standing Committee has been invited to attend.

The Bill will remove large sections of the Indian Act on elections, government, administration and bylaws and replace them with a new set of rules set out in the First Nations Governance Act.

First Nations will have 2 years to develop three different codes or sets of rules on:

2. Elections
3. Financial Management
4. Administration

The First Nations Governance Act dictates the details of what must be included in these codes and the process to be followed for First Nations to approve these codes. There are a few problems with this approach. It will create a lot of work for many First Nations, especially those who are small and already under-funded. If a First Nation does not develop the codes within a two-year period, First Nations will be subject to the Department of Indian Affairs regulations.

Traditional Councils will now have to hold elections through secret ballots because Canada recognizes that this is a "broadly held Canadian value." Many Chiefs in Canada see this as an attack on the First Nations culture and Aboriginal rights.

The First Nations Governance Act is not about Governance. It does not recognize First Nation's Governments or our right to self-determination. It does not recognize the Nation to Nation agreements withii Canada called treaties.

The First Nations Governance Act does not give us the “tools for good governance”, because the tools for good governance are skills, capacities, education, and resources. The proposed legislation has nothing to say about those issues.

First Nation’s communities are in need of the basics of life such as housing, health care, education, economic development, infrastructure, and clean drinking water. None of these crucial needs will be met through the First Nations Governance Act. Minister Robert Nault has spent two years and ten million dollars to come up with this approach. Many Chiefs in Canada are calling the First Nations Governance Act – The Indian Act Part II.

First Nations have a Nation to Nation relationship with Canada. This unique special relationship is upheld in section 35 of the Constitution, in the treaties, by the courts and in negotiated self-government agreements. The First Nations Governance Act violates this relationship in many ways:

1. Most of our people refused to take part in the Governance Act Consultation process. Most First Nations that did participate in the consultation have tabled serious concerns about the process and the subject matter being discussed.
2. A unilateral action taken by the Federal Government is unacceptable. This approach by the government in the past has failed and will continue to fail. First Nations want change, but must have a lead role in bringing about changes that will genuinely improve the lives of the people that live in our communities.
3. The First Nations Governance Act reduces the Federal Governments responsibility to First Nations. It does not support the development of First Nation’s capacity to assume this responsibility.
4. The First Nations Governance Act expands the power of the Minister of Indian Affairs to intervene in financial affairs and set aside elections. This unilateral process of the First Nations Governance Act failed to take into account the democratically elected First Nations leadership.
5. The consultation phase was inadequate; with less than 1% of all First Nations, taking part and those who did participate had little information provided to them on the issues being discussed.
6. The First Nations Governance Act does not address the problems created by previous Indian Act amendments which have created, in law, different classes of Aboriginal women and children.

The AFN Solution

The Assembly of First Nations insists that Canada recognize Aboriginal treaty rights that are affirmed in section 35 of the Constitution. The Aboriginal right of self-determination and governance must be an Aboriginal right recognized in section 35 of the Constitution. In order for First Nations Governance to work effectively, there needs to be a redistribution of lands and resources and fair settlement of outstanding land claims. The Federal Government must develop new financial arrangements based on resource sharing and continue with the historical Government to Government relationship.

First Nations must engage in capacity building to develop the skills and institutions of effective governance. The current federal policies will have to change to remove some of the barriers to self-determination. The Assembly of First Nations proposed to create an office called The First Nations Auditor General and a First Nations Governance Institute.

Affirmative action must be taken to increase the participation of our People in the Canadian economy. Economic development and employment are essential components of self-determination and progress.

The Federal Government must provide First Nations with resources to address the chronic and serious crisis stemming from the lack of housing, health care, education, infrastructure, and clean drinking water.

On June 17th I attended the House of Commons debate on Bill C-61 the First Nations Governance Act. There are 301 seats in the House of Commons. During the debate, there were approximately 25-30 members present. When Chiefs lobby Members of Parliament, quite often we hear that the Members of Parliament are not very well informed about Aboriginal issues. Members of Parliament know very little about Aboriginal people and their aspirations. Passing legislation which effected approximately 675,000 Aboriginal lives, while having such a feeble understanding of the root causes of the serious issues that effect the well being of Aboriginal Communities, is unconscionable.

On July 15th senator David Anhenakew filed a statement of claim with the federal court trial division on behalf of himself and the Federation of Saskatchewan Indians. The statement of claim challenges the Federal Government and the First Nations Governance Act Bill C-61.

First Nations Fiscal and Statistical Management Bill

On August 15, 2002 Minister of Indian Affairs Robert Nault and Chief Manny Jules announced the launch of the First Nations Fiscal and Statistical Management Bill. Minister Nault has announced his support for this proposed legislation, Minister Nault that the proposed legislation will bring to First Nations some key tools other governments take for granted. The new tools include a First Nations Finance Authority, a First Nations Financial Management Board, a First Nations Tax Commission, and a First Nations Statistical Institute.

Since 1999, the National Table on Fiscal Relations has worked towards building a new Canada-First Nations Fiscal relationship.

ADMINISTRATION

The new legislation will allow First Nations Communities to invest their capital in a loan fund, enable First Nations to obtain low interest loans to construct infrastructure as long as the First Nation can demonstrate the ability to repay based upon revenue streams and property taxing schemes.

Many Chiefs believe that the First Nations Fiscal and Statistical Management Bill represents a violation of the mandate of the AFN Chiefs Resolution, directing a review of the First Nations fiscal relationship with Canada and obtaining new sources of funding from Canada.

The proposed legislation is about First Nations communities relationship with each other and not about our fiscal relationship with Canada. Canada is not providing new financial resources to First Nations as directed in the AFN Chiefs resolution. Instead, a model of raising funding through property taxation is proposed.

The proposed legislation ignores the recommendations of the $50 million dollar 1996 Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples Report, which required Canada to provide more money to First Nations communities.

In addition, only 68 Chiefs supported the Fiscal Institutions initiative of the 121 in attendance at the July 2001 AFN Halifax meeting. There were 28 Chiefs opposed and 25 Chiefs abstaining. There are 633 Chiefs in Canada. A minority of Chiefs should not be in a position to dictate legislation that will create precedence for in setting the tone for National Policy.

For the moment, participation in the legislative provisions is optional for the community of each First Nation.

The Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians have requested the AFN National Chief Matthew Cooncome to convene a special Chiefs assembly in November 19-20, 2002 to allow Chiefs to debate the issue.

Slash Road Park

At the September 3, 2002 meeting Council approved a $50,000 budget to construct a park on the Slash Road. There are 66 children residing on the Slash Road. The funding for this project will come from the Indian & Northern Affairs minor capital budget.

Engineering Estimates Reauested

At the September 3, 2002 Council meeting Council requested estimates to pave the York Road in three sections, a cost to design an Administration Building & Cultural Centre and the cost to update the 1983 R. J. Burnside drainage study.

Road Needs Study

At the Seotember 3, 2003 Council meeting, Council approved to submit a proposal to Indian Affairs for a road needs study for $17,750.

Gary Jewel is currently working on the study and the expected completion date is mid November.

Queen's 2002 Jubilee Visit—October 9, 2002

Over 100 members of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte, including Elders, Quinte Mohawk School Dancers, Mohawk Singers, Clergy, community organizational representatives, Veterans and members of Council attended the Festival of Ontario on the invitation of Premier Ernie Eves. The invitation was extended to participate in the National celebration of the Jubilee Visit of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

Our treaties are with the Queen and not with any political party, that constitutes the government of the day. I requested the Queen to uphold our treaty rights to ensure that our unique relationship with the Crown, as formalized in our ancient treaties, be secured and preserved. Our Elders, Veterans and community members enjoyed the event. It was also informative to the Premier, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General and many Cabinet Ministers who visited the Tyendinaga Mohawk Pavilion.

At the Festival, the Attorney General of Ontario, David Young, agreed to have a lunch meeting with me to discuss how Ontario could improve its relationship with First Nations Communities.

The most costly items of this visit were for the reprinting of the Christ Church Royal Chapel brochures. The Ontario Government has agreed to reimburse the Band $10,000 to cover these expenses. I have enclosed the letter for your perusal.

The event brought much favorable comment from the public and provided the Elders, Veterans and children the opportunity to participate in a national historical event, which they will likely remember for many years to come.

Congratulations and Best Wishes

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mrs. Shirley Martin who recently retired on October 16, 2002 after completing nearly 10 years of service at the Daycare Centre. We thank Shirley for her many years of loyal and dedicated service and wish her many years of good health and happiness in her retirement.

Special Thanks

I thank Becca Hill for writing to me to express her concerns about the harmful effects of the Richmond Landfill expansion. It was a real pleasure to hear from a Quinte Mohawk student concerning a community issue.

I hope you have found this report informative

Sincerely

R. Donald Maracle, Chief

Dear Chief:

It seems that the CWS wants to expand the dump. We can't let them, because the leachate may go into the bay and into the soil the plants need the soil which is contaminated and the fish need the plants and so on and so on.

We must not let them expand the dump for the safety of the environment.

Not everyone knows or cares about it. This is why I'm giving you this letter because I care, and we need to fight back.

Sincerely Becca Hill

Rabies Vaccination Clinics a Success

Belleville October 28, 2002 - Throughout Hastings and Prince Edward counties approximately six thousand, four hundred cats and dogs were successfully vaccinated on Saturday, October 5, 2002. Seventeen local veterinarian clinics and animal hospitals participated in the low cost clinics organized by Hastings & Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, in cooperation with the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit and the Quinte District Veterinary Association.

"The public awareness and the vaccination clinics were once again a great success," says Glen Hudgin, director of public health inspection at the Hastings & Prince Edward Counties Health Unit. "The clinics have met the goal of encouraging pet owners to be responsible to their pets, families and neighbours." Hudgin reminds everyone that "rabies vaccination for cats and dogs is mandatory in Hastings and Prince Edward counties and is the best defense for protecting people and pets against the fatal disease."

The greatest risk to humans of acquiring rabies is through contact with their pets which may have contracted rabies through contact with rabid wild life. Maintaining a vaccinated pet population is the best means of creating a protective barrier between wildlife and humans.

FROM THE HOUSING DEPARTMENT

ABOUT YOUR HOUSE

CARBON MONOXIDE

The presence of carbon monoxide (CO) in our homes is dangerous. So, how can you protect your family from carbon monoxide? How do you choose the right CO detector for your home? The first step is to make sure that carbon monoxide never enters your home. The second step is to install at least one CO detector in your home.

This About Your House answers often-asked questions about carbon monoxide to help you make the right decision to make your home safe.

What is carbon monoxide?

Carbon monoxide (CO) is a colourless and odourless gas. It is not explosive. Because you can't see, taste or smell it, it can affect you or your family before you even know it's there. Even at low levels of exposure, carbon monoxide can cause serious health problems. CO is harmful because it will rapidly accumulate in the blood, depleting the ability of blood to carry oxygen. ("Exposure Guidelines for Residential Indoor Air Quality," Health Canada, 1989).

Where does carbon monoxide come from?

Carbon monoxide is a common by-product of the combustion (burning) of fossil fuels. Most fuel-burning equipment (natural gas, propane and oil), if properly installed and maintained, produces little CO. The by-products of combustion are usually safely vented to the outside. However, if anything disrupts the venting process (such as a bird's nest in the chimney) or results in a shortage of oxygen to the burner, CO production can quickly rise to dangerous levels.

The burning of wood, kerosene, coal and charcoal produce CO. Gasoline engines produce CO. CO production is at a maximum during the startup of a cold engine. Starting, then idling, your car or gas mower in the garage can be dangerous. The fumes that contain CO can enter a home through connecting walls or doorways and can quickly rise to dangerous levels.

How can I eliminate sources of CO in my home?

The most important step you can take to eliminate the possibility of CO poisoning is to ensure that CO never has an opportunity to enter your home. This is your first line of defence. Review this list to minimize the risk of CO in your home.

- Have a qualified technician inspect and clean fuel-burning appliances yearly, before the cold weather sets in, to ensure they are in good working order.
- Have a qualified technician inspect chimneys and vents yearly for cracks, blockages (e.g., bird's nests, twigs, old mortar), corrosion or holes.
- Check fireplaces for closed or blocked flues.

- Check with a qualified technician before enclosing heating and hot water equipment in a smaller room, to ensure there is adequate air for proper combustion.
- If you have a powerful kitchen exhaust fan or downdraft cooktop, have a qualified technician check that its operation does not pull fumes back down the chimney.
- Never use propane or natural gas stove tops or ovens to heat your home.
- Never start a vehicle in a closed garage; open the garage doors first. Pull the car out immediately onto the driveway, then close the garage door to prevent exhaust fumes from being drawn into the house.
- Do not use a remote automobile starter when the car is in the garage; even if the garage doors are open carbon monoxide will seep into the house.
- Never operate propane, natural gas or charcoal barbecue grills indoors or in an attached garage.
- Avoid the use of a kerosene space heater indoors or in a garage. If its use is unavoidable provide combustion air by opening a window while operating. Refuel outside after the unit has cooled.
- Never run a lawnmower, snowblower, or any gasoline-powered tool such as a whipper-snipper or pressure washer inside a garage or house.
- The use of fossil fuels for refrigeration, cooking, heat, and light inside tents, trailers, and motorhomes can be very dangerous. Be sure that all equipment is properly vented to the outside and use electric or battery-powered equipment where possible.
- Regularly clean the clothes dryer ductwork and outside vent cover for blockages such as lint, snow, or overgrown outdoor plants.
- Reduce or eliminate the use of fondue heaters indoors.
- If you live close to a road with heavy traffic, outdoor carbon monoxide levels can affect your indoor air quality, especially during rush hour. Such levels should not set off a CO alarm, but slightly elevated CO levels might be observable on some types of CO detectors with a digital display.

Carbon Monoxide detectors —Is one really necessary?

If you take the actions above, you greatly reduce your risk of CO poisoning. But unanticipated dangerous incidents may still occur despite your best efforts to avoid CO. The installation of at least one CO detector in your home is a good safety precaution and in some municipalities it is the law. A detector might be your second line of defence, but it is necessary. You should have one in your home today.

How does a CO detector work?

There are three basic types of CO sensors—metal oxide, biomimetic and electrochemical. Each is discussed in the chart below. Note that while there may be performance differences between these technologies, all detectors are tested and approved for their operation. The retail cost of a detector will generally relate to the number of features included and its warranty conditions.

	Metal Oxide Semiconductor (MOS)	Biomimetic	Electrochemical
How does it work?	The original technology for detecting CO. Heated tin oxide reacts with CO to determine the levels of the toxic gas. Must connect to house power.	Gel-coated discs darken in the presence of CO. Colour change sounds an alarm.	Chemical reaction with CO creates an electrical current, setting off an alarm.
Features	- No need to remember to check batteries as the unit plugs in. - Battery backup is available for up to 20 hours.	- Less expensive technology. - Can be battery operated.	- Highly sensitive and accurate readings at all CO levels. - Most units come with a continuous digital readout and a memory feature that allows you to check past CO levels. - Fast reset time. - Most units sound an alert when sensor needs replacing.

What features should I look for when purchasing a CO detector?

Most CO detectors are designed to give an alarm when CO levels reach a high-level in a short time. However, health agencies advise that long term, low-level exposure are also of concern, especially for the unborn and young children, the elderly and those with a history of heart or respiratory problems (Health Canada, 1989). Detectors that can display both high and low levels are more expensive but they do provide greater accuracy and more information.

Here are some features to consider when purchasing a CO detector:

- Look for a detector that is listed with the Underwriters Laboratories of Canada (ULC) to the Canadian Gas Association (CGA) or Canadian Standards Association (CSA) standard. The logos of both testing agencies will be on the product.
- Choose a detector with a memory if you want to monitor long term low-level exposure and short term, high-level exposure. Even though product standards do not allow manufacturers to display low levels of CO, these units monitor and store this information. Peak levels, no matter what the level of concentration, can be viewed by pressing a button.
- Battery-operated units allow detector placement in the most convenient location. However, any battery-operated device requires the user's diligence in replacing worn-out batteries.
- Do not connect plug-in units to an electrical outlet that is controlled by a wall switch.
- No detectors will operate properly forever. Replace them at least every five years, unless the manufacturer specifies a shorter or longer life.

Eventually, manufacturers may be required to print expiry dates on their CO detectors. This will ensure that you are purchasing an up-to-date product with a full sensor life.

Where do I put a CO detector?

Most manufacturers specify where you should locate their CO detector. In general, the best place to put the detector is where you will hear it while sleeping. CO is roughly the same weight as air and distributes evenly throughout a room, so a detector can be placed at any height in any location, as long as its alarm can be heard. Additional units could be installed in several other locations around the home, such as a child's bedroom; check the list below before installing.

To avoid both damage to the unit and to reduce false alarms, do not install CO detectors:

- in unheated basements, attics or garages
- in areas of high humidity
- where they will be exposed to chemical solvents or cleaners, including hair spray, deodorant sprays, etc.
- near vents, flues or chimneys
- within 2 metres (6 ft.) of heating and cooking appliances
- near forced-or unforced-air-ventilation openings
- within 2 metres (6 ft.) of corners or areas where natural air circulation is low
- where they can be damaged, such as an outlet in a high traffic area
- where directly exposed to the weather.

What do I do if I hear the CO detector alarm?

Do not ignore the CO detector's alarm if it sounds. Treat each alarm as serious and respond accordingly.

CO detectors are designed to sound an alarm before a healthy adult would feel any symptoms. Infants, the elderly and those with respiratory and heart conditions are at particular risk and may react to even low levels of CO poisoning (Health Canada, 1989).

Response to an obvious source of CO

If your detector sounds an alarm and you have an obvious source of CO, such as an unvented kerosene heater:

- evacuate the house, including pets and do a head count
- if anyone is suffering from flu-like symptoms, call 911
- remove or turn off the source
- ventilate the house
- reset the alarm
- do not re-occupy the house until the alarm ceases
- take steps to avoid this situation in the future.

ADMINISTRATION

FROM THE HOUSING DEPARTMENT

Response to an unknown source of CO

If your CO detector is sounding an alarm and there is no obvious source of CO:

- evacuate the house, including pets and do a head count
- if anyone has flu-like symptoms, call 911; if there are no health problems, call your gas utility, heating contractor or the fire department to have your house tested
- if you live in a single family home: do not ventilate your home, turn off fuel-burning appliances or reset your CO detector prior to someone testing your home *
- if you live in a duplex, row house, apartment, or otherwise attached house, do ventilate the house and turn off fuel-burning appliances. In this case, the safety of your neighbours is more important than trying to find the CO source
- have a qualified service technician inspect and repair all fuel-burning appliances, if they are identified as being the CO source
- do not re-occupy the house unless those who tested the house inform you that the danger is over.

Symptoms of CO poisoning'

Be sure that all members of your family know the symptoms of CO poisoning:

Mild exposure

Flu-like symptoms such as headache, running nose, sore eyes, etc.

Medium exposure

Drowsiness, dizziness, vomiting. The sense of disorientation and confusion may make it difficult for some victims to make rational decisions like leaving the home or asking for assistance.

Extreme exposure

Unconsciousness, brain damage, death

Continued low-level exposure to CO while this may be not lead to observable symptoms, you should still avoid such exposure.

Testing a Carbon Monoxide detector

Most CO detectors have a test button that should be pressed once a week to confirm that the device is in operation. Detectors with displays can be tested with a known source of CO such as smoke from a cigarette or incense stick. Hold the CO source about 8-10 inches away and watch the digital display respond to the presence of even a small amount of CO—BUT an alarm will most likely not sound with this test.

There are CO detector test kits available, where CO detectors are sold, that provide a vial of high level of CO (1000 ppm) and a plastic tent to house the unit during the test. This test only proves that your detector will sound an alarm with a very high level of CO.

Changes in test standards

The standards organizations of Canada (CSA International) and the United States (Underwriter's Laboratory or UL) have co-ordinated the writing of CO standards and product testing. The standards as of January 2000 prohibit showing CO levels of less than 30 ppm on digital displays. The new standards also require the alarm to round at higher levels of CO than with previous editions of the standard. The reasoning behind these changes is to reduce calls to fire stations, utilities and emergency response teams when the levels of CO are not life-threatening. This change will also reduce the number of calls to these agencies due to detector inaccuracy or the presence of other gases. Consequently, new alarms will not round at CO concentrations up to 70 ppm. Note that these concentrations are significantly in excess of the Canadian health guidelines.

Detectors with a digital display and a "history" option can provide the true CO concentrations in a house. A low-level display would be useful for people with existing respiratory problems or for those who like to spot evolving problems, rather than having to wait for the situation to become serious. Low-level CO detection products are becoming commercially available. They will not be certified to CSA or UL standards, as these standards currently prohibit low level displays.

There are performance differences between these detector types. However, changes to the CO standards should soon result in all detectors, regardless of detector type, having to undergo extensive testing. All will be certified to operate under different environments (various chemical exposures, different relative humidities, etc.) satisfactorily if they meet the standards.

* Many CO alarm calls have been classified as "false alarms" because the homeowner has ventilated the home and turned off the equipment before firemen or technicians can measure the CO levels and find the source.

TRUSTEE'S REPORT OCTOBER 2002

Some thoughts this month on the science of teaching.

I wrote last month that teachers have become better at diagnosing the missing pieces in students' reading skills and taking steps to fill in the blanks. I thought readers might be interested in the science behind some of these advances, and the pressures that are created when policy makers in education exert pressure to have new approaches applied in schools across the province or across the country.

Skills in reading and comprehension affect every other aspect of learning. If you can make sense of the story in the science text you are on the way to figuring out the causes and effects of a reaction in chemistry or the connections between life systems in biology. So reading is fundamental, and not just for appreciating literature or understanding history.

The building blocks of reading ability are put in place early in life. Research on brain development in the first few years of life has shown that even before children learn to talk, even when they are "just playing" there is a construction process of pathways in the brain going on fast and furious. These pathways become the bridges over which information travels and is turned into understanding.

In 1999 Dr Fraser Mustard and Margaret McCain submitted a well researched report to the Government of Ontario documenting the importance of supporting a rich learning environment for young children that included safety, good nutrition and a variety of social and physical activities to tickle their imagination and develop skills. The report called The Early Years received a lot of attention but did not result in any significant improvement in services to young children.

The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in the U.S. has published research that shows 90% to 95% of all children can learn to read at the level required for progress through the school grades appropriate to their age if they have the help they need to overcome blocks. This is quite a change from the thinking not too many years ago, that most children could learn some of what was taught, a few would shine, and others were headed for failure and early departure from school.

Other research has shown that the earlier action is taken to remedy reading problems, the greater success the intervention will have. Help at the level of Senior Kindergarten and Grade 1 is successful in improving problems 90 to 95% of the time. After grade 5, intervention to improve reading problems is successful 10 to 15% of the time.

The Ontario Ministry of Education has absorbed these findings - that reading is fundamental to learning in all subjects, that almost all children can learn to read successfully, and that early intervention to remedy problems works best. The Ministry has directed all school boards to set targets for improving the reading achievement of students in Kindergarten to Grade 3. However, extraordinary pressures are created when teachers are expected to learn the latest methods of remedying problems, spend time testing and giving students remedial help and reporting on progress, in addition to their customary teaching activities. The pressures are magnified in light of the "learning curve" that all teachers are climbing as they adjust to implementing the new Ontario curriculum across all subjects. In the meantime, budgets for teacher salaries and class sizes, as well as administration and school operations, are set by the Ministry according to formulas that are causing pain in school boards across the province. Everyone is eagerly awaiting a report commissioned by the Ministry to review the funding formula.

The flurry of recent press reports relate to events and pressures in provincial schools. At the moment tensions in Hastings and Prince Edward District School Board (HPEDSB) relate to negotiations with Elementary teachers. However, the worry of one is the worry of all [close with reference to a couple of other research reports, that provide Evidence that when people are given information that leads them to think they are isolated and rejected (even if the information is wrong), their thinking processes become impaired. People can't do their best when they are dealing with negative feedback about themselves.

My advice for the month: Support your local teachers; they will do a better job for you and your children. Support your education administrators; they will do a better job for you and your children. Support your political representatives; they are the people who will work on your behalf to maintain a high quality education system.

Skennen kowa. Great Peace to you.

Sacred Teachings: A Code of Ethics

The following code of ethics describes what wisdom means in the relationship between individuals, in family life and in the life of a community.

1. Each morning upon rising, and each evening before sleeping, give thanks for the life within you and for all life. For the good things the creator has given you and others and for the opportunity to grow a little each day. Consider your thoughts and actions of the past day and seek out courage and strength to be a better person. Seek for the things that will benefit everyone.
2. Respect means to feel or show honour or esteem for someone or something; to consider
  - the well-being of, or to treat someone or something with deference or courtesy. Showing respect is a basic law of life.
  - Treat every person, from the tiniest child to the oldest elder with respect at all times
  - Special respect should be given to elders, parents, teachers and community leaders
  - no person should be made to feel 'put down' by anyone. Avoid hurting others.
  - touch nothing that belongs to someone else (especially) sacred objects without permission, or an understanding between you.
    - respect the privacy of every person. Never intrude on a person's quiet moment or personal space.
    - never speak about others in a negative way, whether they are present or not
    - treat the earth and all her aspects as you would your own mother. Show deep respect for the mineral, plant and animal worlds. Do nothing to pollute the air or the soil
    - show deep respect for the beliefs and religions of others.
    - listen with courtesy to what others say, even if you feel that what they are saying is worthless. Listen with your heart.
3. Be truthful at all times.
4. Always treat your guests with honour and consideration. Give of your best food, your best blankets, the best part of your home and your best service.
5. The hurt of one is the hurt of all and the honour of one is the honour of all.
6. Respect all nations and races

BREASTFEEDING CIRCLE

"My baby is fussy and wants to nurse or be held all the time. I can't even manage to eat well when she's like this. Help!"

Babies commonly want to be held and nursed "all the time" during growth spurts, illness, teething, and other situations. Your baby is lucky to have a mom who is so tuned in and sensitive to her needs, whatever they are! You are doing the most important job in the world...nurturing another human being, not just physically but emotionally too. This is not always easy to remember when Others urge you to plug in a pacifier or a bottle!

Believe if or not, this is temporary. You may have to be your own doula (someone who "mothers the mother") at times, by settling for looking after the bare minimum for awhile...which is eating, clean clothes to wear, and you & your baby's hygiene. You do need to eat. Although it's usually best to fix your own food, now is not the time to expect gourmet meals and cook everything from scratch. Some cheating is allowed here to keep you fed. Here are some tips and quick rescues from busy mothers who have been there...

- *Nourishing snacks that don't need fixing : raw seeds, raw nuts (almonds have lots of calcium), raw fruits, Serendipity mix (from Bulk Barn), triscuits, and raw baby carrots are all good. Keep handy where you nurse. Remember to drink too.
- *Use pre-made salad bags
- *Leftover potatoes? %shed potatoes + cheez whiz + bacon bits
- *Fussy Day Chicken -Rinse & drain, or pat dry, a whole chicken. Put in crock pot with cavity up. Pour barbeque sauce in & over chicken...Cover & cook: for 8-10 hrs on low. Forget it while you tend to your fussy baby...don't even check. Sauce good on rice or potatoes...maybe Dad or Grandma will help later.
- *Split Pea Soup for Busy Mothers : Put in crock pot...1 lb. split peas, 8-10 cups water, 1 onion, 3 large carrots cut up or some baby carrots, 1 clove garlic, celery leaves from 1 stalk. Optional ham bone, leftover ham, or turkey carcass, 1 tsp. curry powder. Cook on low for 8-10 hrs. or on high for 3-4 hrs.
- *Try a baby sling. Babies can sleep or look around in a sling, older babies can nurse in them-- gives you one free hand, sometimes two.

We were very surprised and thankful for those community members who simply showed up that day to see if there was anything they could do to help us out, especially to Councillor Greg Brant. It was very nice of you to come to school to work at our festival. It was wonderful for our school to have so many people who truly care about us, even though they no longer have children who attend our school. There are no words for us to express our admiration. We are indeed lucky to have thoughtful, supportive, imaginative and creative people attend our festival days. These people are the type of positive role models that our students need to see.

Once again, thanks very much to our community volunteers. Your presence in our school means so very much to everyone!

Sincerely,

COMMUNITY INTEREST

BOTTLED WATER

Water is classified as "bottled water" only if it meets all federal and provincial regulations for potable water.

It has to be sealed in a sanitary container and is sold for human consumption. Bottled water cannot contain sweeteners or chemical additives and must be both calorie and sugar free

There seems to be a great deal of confusion regarding bottled water. This is understandable, as there are many different sources for bottled water. The old adage of "let the buyer beware" is very true, when purchasing water. Some labeling may be slightly misleading. Just because there is a picture of a mountain stream on the label, doesn't mean the water inside that bottle is natural. In fact that water may just be heavily processed tap water. Consumers should read the labels, or ask their suppliers, where the source of that of that bottled water is.

SOURCES OF BOTTLED WATER:

Tap Water: Up to 25% of all bottled water starts from someone's faucet. This water is heavily processed, usually with minerals added for taste.

Distilled Water: Water from any source that goes through an evaporation-condensation process. Considered by many to be very good water, however, distilled water is not a viable bottled water as the process is too expensive.

Artesian Water: An aquifer that has been tapped but does not need to be pumped out. Once tapped, the water in that aquifer will flow to the surface by itself as it is under pressure.

Spring Water: Water that flows naturally from under the ground and having a natural mineral content of less than 500 p.p.m. Usually considered the healthiest waters to drink. Spring waters contain natural minerals, many of which the body needs.

Other waters that are bottled in small amounts are mineral waters and sparkling waters. The consumer should not make the mistake of relating price to quality of water. There are too many variables. ie ( packaging, shipping bottling etc.) that determine bottled water prices.

As bottled water is sold as a food item, it is highly regulated. Bottled water has its own associations that govern its standards. There are also the standards of government agencies to control quality. The Canadian Bottled Water Association, International Bottled Water Association, the Canadian Food Inspection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration are some of the agencies that keep quality control at a premium. Bottled water users can be sure their products have met high government standards.

With all the bottled water being safe to drink, the general consensus is that natural is usually best. As with most natural products, the more you process them, the further they get from their original state.

Maybe it just a matter of taste?

MOHAWK FAIR

YOU'RE INVITED!!!

To attend a regular meeting of the Mohawk Agricultural Society. Now that 2002 Mohawk Fair is over, it's time to prepare for 2003's Fair. During the year, a small group of Fair Board Members meet to plan the next year's activities. We would like to invite the remaining membership and the community members to attend some of our regular meetings to help with some of the decisions that need to be made and to offer some new ideas for consideration.

These are some of the items that will be on the agenda for the upcoming meetings:

1. Should we change the date of the Fair?
2. Should we pursue the idea of a Food Court?
3. Should we open the gates earlier on Friday?
4. Should youth (12-18 yrs) exhibitors pay membership to exhibit in "adult" categories? If not, should they get free admission to the Fair?
5. What would be appropriate compensation for the school children who march in Saturday's parade?
6. What new events could we have (particularly on Sunday)?
7. Should we add some Native content/theme to the Fair program? If so, what and how?
8. Should we re-visit a Saturday night dance? If so, where?
9. Who should get free admission to the Fair?

We hold meetings on the first Monday of every month, at the Mohawk Fire Hall, 7 p.m. Please come out and join us, in support of the Mohawk Fair. Your attendance and comments will be appreciated.
