TO THE MEMBERS OF THE MOHAWKS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE FROM THE CHIEF

Se:ken Sewakwekenh

I hope you have enjoyed the hot summer weather and all the outdoor activities with your family and friends.

POLICING

I attended a policing meeting on August 21, 2001 at Hiawatha to discuss policing issues. Police Chief Larry Hay and Council Police Portfolio holder attended as well.

Hugh Stevenson is the OPP Negotiator for the new Tripartite Policing Negotiations. Mr. Stevenson has indicated that Ontario is not willing to negotiate any more stand alone policing agreements. The two models that remain are the Ontario Provincial Police model and the First Nations Region Policing model comparable to the White Pine Regional Police Services.

There are currently 89 First Nations Police Officers employed under the Ontario First Nations Policing Agreement managed by the OPP. There are five positions that do not receive funding from the Federal cost-sharing agreement.

A needs assessment has never been done by the OPP for First Nations Policing requirements. I introduced a motion that this important work be undertaken. The RCMP has three types of needs assessment models.

Police negotiations are frustrating because of the lack of a needs assessment. There is no Federal budget to negotiate. Inadequate capital infrastructure is systemic in First Nations Policing operations; there is no functioning Indian Commission of Ontario process. The province has all the Tripartite Policing files under lock and key.

There is a lack of significant progress in achieving wage parity with the OPP and differences in the pension provisions for OPP and First Nations Constables. There was much discussion between the 80 and 90 factor for pension benefits and the inequality that is applied to First Nations Constables. There are issues relating to the buy back of pensionable services prior to 1985. First Nation Constables are paid 7.2% less than their OPP colleagues.

Glen Trivette, Manager of First Nations Policing Program apologized on behalf of the OPP for the inappropriate racist messages circulated by some OPP Officers on the internet and reported that the Officers are being disciplined or have been terminated from the Police Force.

Dear Chief Maracle:

On May 12, 2000, I appointed Ms. Mavis Erickson as the Special Representative on the Protection of First Nation Women's Rights. The objectives of the Special Representative process were to obtain a factual understanding of the issues that have had negative impacts on the protection of First Nation women's rights and to identify the best legislative model or policy response which the government could adopt to ensure the protection of First Nations.

On January 18, 2001, Ms. Erickson submitted her report to me. While the Special Representative's report may fall short of my expectations, some of the content could be used to continue the work in addressing the complex issues facing First Nation women. As I have made a commitment to transparency in the policy development process, I enclose for your information a copy of the Final Report of the Special Representative on the Protection of First Nation Women's Rights. Please note that any references made in the report to Government of Canada programs or departments are strictly the views of the author.

Any comments that you may have concerning the report would be welcomed. Please direct any comments to Ms. Line Paré, Acting Director, Women's Issues and Gender Equality Directorate. Ms. Paré can be reached at:

A Special Tribute is paid to Lieutenant Colonel Tom Gilday who passed away on June 13, 2001 at Sunnybrook Hospital.

Lieutenant Col. Gilday was the guest of honour at the May 20, 2001 Mohawk Landing Ceremony and carried Captain Joseph Brant's ceremonial sword at the service at Christ Church Royal Chapel.

Lt. Col. Gilday was the commanding officer of Sergeant Tommy Prince and the Devils Brigade which liberated Rome during the Second World War.

Tommy Prince was a native from the Brokenhead Reserve in Manitoba and was among the top three most decorated soldiers in the Canadian Army during World War II.

This article is taken from SITREP Vol. 59, Issue 7 August 2001

One of the Devil's Brigade

TOM GILDAY, AN APPRECIATION

Tom Gilday died as close to great outdoors as was possible - under the trees on the grounds of Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital. It was his wish, for he was an outdoorsman, a paddler, a skier, a mountain climber, a swimmer and a player of every other outdoor sport from golf to water polo. More than that he was a soldier, a mili-tiaman. He was proud of his militia service, feeling that the backbone of this country's defence was the citizen-soldier, of which he was one for seven decades. His slogan was, "a militiaman never retires", by which he meant that even after his service in uniform ends, the true militiaman retains an active interest in the well-being of the militia, safeguarding its existence, sponsoring its aims, supporting its needs - speaking out on its behalf, fearlessly and constantly.

LCol Thomas Pope Gilday, DSO, ED was in his 91st year when he died on June 13, 2001. He was commissioned in the Canadian Grenadier Guards in 1932 and with the outbreak of war was soon given a specialist's task. He became a Canadian Army ski instructor and was then posted to the First Special Service Force, the U.S.-Canadian Army known as the "Devil's Brigade", as most movie-goers will recall. Originally, the FSSF was organized and trained to parachute into Norway and seize the heavy water plants needed in the development of the atomic bomb. But the mission was cancelled and the Force ended up in Italy, fighting in the battle for Monte Cassino, and later in the Anzio bridgehead. Gilday, a battalion commander, was known for his leadership and personal gallantry in action, which gained him the Distinguished Service Order. His battalion was the first Allied unit to enter Rome. Later it landed in the South of France where, after a few skirmishes with the withdrawing Germans, the FSSF was disbanded. This because the high-calibre reinforcements required to keep the unit in its specialist role as parachutists and mountaineers could not be found. Gilday was given command of the Regina Rifles, a Saskatchewan unit, which he led in the clearing of the Scheidt in the Northwest European campaign of late 1944. He was mentioned in Despatches and appointed a staff officer to both General Crerar and General Simonds. After the war when he returned to his civilian business career he continued serving in the Militia, commanding the 58th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment in Sudbury, Ontario.

At the outdoor funeral service, padre, Major the Rev Canon Kenneth Maxted, OMM, CD recalled Col Gilday's principles of military leadership - "first, take care of your men." And, "don't forget them after the war." His other ideas on leadership speak through his deeds as a commander in the field. In his remarks the padre said that Col Gilday was a man "completely without guile" - he was straightforward and left no one guessing what he believed or what he was going to do. He followed closely the post-war policies for the Armed Forces. When he thought these policies endangered or diminished these Forces, especially the Militia, he spoke out courageously against them, often writing letters condemning some policy matter with which he disagreed. Hence his admonition that a militiaman never retired, but remained active on behalf of the Militia no matter how long it was since he doffed his uniform. The Militia did not monopolize all his time. He took a leading role in a diversity of national organizations and still found time for an outstanding number of outdoor sports. He canoed in the north-land where he imagined he was living the life of a voyageur. Four months before his death he flew over Mt. Assinaboine in the Rockies by helicopter to ski at a height of seven thousand feet.

With a lone piper sending the mournful sounds of the "Flowers of the Forest" across the green lawns of Toronto's Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Tom Gilday's coffin, covered with the Canadian Red Ensign, under which he fought for his Country, was lowered into the grave. And those who knew Tom thought of Shakespeare's lines - that in Tom were "the elements so mixed ... that Nature might stand up and say to all the World this was a MAN."

3. Casino Rama Projects:

Council is considering the following as immediate priorities for the Casino Rama allocation:

- i. Quinte Mohawk School:
Currently, there are negotiations with Indian Affairs to relocate the existing Daycare program to new facilities to free up space for the junior and senior kindergartn programs. The last estimated cost for the new facility totalled $1.8 million. We are currently revisiting the floorplan to confirm the final concept. Also, we are researching possible sites including the feasibility of the school lagoon handling additional capacity in the event the Daycare is placed on the vacant lot between QMS and the Health Centre.
- ii. Public Works Garage and Salt Dome:
The existing road shed requires significant modifications to bring it into compliance with today's building standards. There are concerns regarding fire protection, ventilation and storage of volatile materials. Council is committed towards alleviating this safety concern for our roads crew and are considering utilizing the day labour approach to complete the project. The estimated costs for a new facility totals $905,000.

iii. Water Truck:

To address the issue of low yielding wells, Council has made a commitment to research the feasibility of operating a water truck for community purposes as an interim measure until the community is serviced by water lines. The costs to operate this program are still under investigation.

iv. Land Purchases:

Council is finalizing the Capital Planning Study (CPS) which will serve as a basis for future project decisions. Within the CPS the major constraint identified was the lack of property for common purposes development. In addition to the previous purchases along Sadies Lane Council has purchased additional properties and is continuing to negotiate with other property owners in the Ridge Road area.

In regards to the Casino Rama allocation, you are encouraged to forward your written project suggestions to the Office or to your Council representatives. Any ideas would be greatly appreciated. Please remember the funds can only be utilized in the following areas:

- Economic Development
- Education
- Community Development (Infrastructure)
- Cultural Development
- Health

4. Other Projects:

- i. Enviro Home
Council has approved to proceed with the design and construction of an enviro home in the Shannonville area. Council's contribution towards the costs totals $40,000 with the balance obtained through proposals submitted by the Housing Department.
- ii. Tree Farm Feasibility Study
- iii. Addition to the Hides Depot

It is my intention to provide you with a quarterly report in regards to general administrative issues, major projects and financial reports. As you know, Council meets on a regular basis I will ensure Council minutes are available at the front desk to keep you informed. All policies will be kept in central registry at the Administration Office if you would like a copy please contact Sandra Green.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Creativity is what every individual brings to an organization. Therefore, it is important to help people to learn and use their creativity in a collective way. Working as a collective means that people come together and share ideas and thoughts while sitting in a circle. These thoughts and ideas are combined in a collective force.

If you can create, you can empower and give direction to the organization on program development and delivery, and any other issues which need to be addressed.

The magic of organization is simply the ability to integrate your individual thinking with the collective thinking of others in the organization. This ability to think at a level which is greater than any personal scripts or negative baggage that we may also carry and bring to the organization is called creativity. When a person is operating from their creativity, they are operating from a spiritual ability to solve any problem.

One of the keys to working in an organization is the ability to facilitate the thinking and feelings that people have around certain issues. Facilitating thinking and feeling means that you are encouraging people to speak and to share their ideas and feelings which may cloud the creativity they need to overcome issues, invent solutions and create new plans, options and directions. When facilitating thinking, you simply listen to what everyone is saying, show them on a flip chart the ideas that they have expressed and then look for the common threads and ideas on which to build.

The following statements are provided as descriptions of what is expected of individuals who volunteer as a Director on the Board of the Woodland Cultural Centre.

1. The ability to portray the needs and aspirations of your community in a clear and concise fashion;
2. To be able to identify community cultural needs through dialogue with councillors, teachers, elders and children;
3. The capabilities of leadership and communication;
4. Ability to operate both technically and administratively;
5. Ability to make good business decisions;
6. Ability to work towards common goals as part of a team;
7. Having some experience in fundraising;
8. Must have a commitment to leadership and active participation, and promote culture and language within your community;
9. Liaise with other first nations and governments to promote our mission and goals, seek and encourage participation of communities and the general public;
10. Able to take risks in the advocacy of positive affirmation of First Nation cultures;

Attention: Chris Maracle

With the recent release of the Ontario Regulations 212/01 for Gaseous Fuels, Union Gas will have to change the way we inspect new to gas installations and equipment. Clauses 7 (1) and 7 (2) of the Ontario Regulations state that as a distributor of natural gas in Ontario, Union Gas must inspect all appliances that are installed, or are intended to be installed, at the time of occupation of a newly constructed building, or at the time a building is converted to natural gas. This applies to all residential, commercial and industrial buildings.

These regulatory changes require Union Gas to alter its current inspection procedures. In the past, Union Gas was only required to inspect the natural gas equipment that was connected at the time the meter was set and/or turned on. No further inspection was required under the previous regulations. Effective August 27th, 2001, an inspection must be completed of all natural gas equipment prior to the new owners taking possession of the home. Therefore, when calling in for a meter set/turn on, you will need to provide our Customer Care Representative with a complete list of natural gas equipment that you intend to install (e.g., a natural gas furnace, water heater, fireplace, range, dryer, barbeque or any other natural gas appliances in the home). When faxing in a request, ensure all the natural gas equipment intended to be installed is listed on the Builder Meter Set Request form. I can supply you with copies of the form if you need them.

Residential meter installations in the warm weather should not be requested until all the natural gas equipment is installed. A complete inspection will be done at the time the meter is set and turned on, eliminating the need for you to schedule a second call. Builders using natural gas for construction heat in the cold weather will continue to use the same process as before: a request for construction heat will automatically schedule a meter set. However, there is still the need to have the permanent equipment inspected prior to occupancy, and you will be required to call and schedule a final inspection. Providing us with a minimum of five days notice will ensure that this inspection can be completed prior to occupancy. Under the Ontario Regulations, Union Gas cannot transfer the house from the builders name to the new occupants name until the final inspection is completed.

As a natural gas builder, these changes will mean that your homebuyer will receive a complete inspection, by Union Gas, of all the natural gas equipment installed in the home when they take possession. This will remove problems found with installations after the new owner has moved in. This not only eliminates unwelcome surprises for both the builder and the new homeowner, it also enhances our enviable safety record in the natural gas industry. For more information, please contact me at the number below.

Union Gas will be asking you for a total list of all natural gas appliances to be installed in the home beginning August 27th, 2001.

Sincerely,

Deanna Hurman

Economic Development Department

The Economic Development Department consists of an Economic Development Officer (EDO), an Economic Development Assistant (EDA) and a Hides Depot Operator (HDO). The department assists community members with private entrepreneurial ventures and assists the community with public for-profit ventures.

The Hides Depot is a community run for-profit business and the Operator reports to the EDO. The Depot collects hides through the Hats for Hides Program and then sells the leather produced from the hides collected.

The EDA has been hired on the Income Security Reform program. The objective of this program is to offer alternative opportunities and intensive assistance in business ventures to Social Assistance Recipients. The EDA also assists generally in the economic development office.

The Economic Development Department has initiated a number of different programs for the businesses on the Territory. There is a Business Registration Policy which offers a wholesale purchase permit to businesses registered on-reserve. The registration also allows businesses to take part of the tax free tobacco quota offered to the community.

Economic Development has also set up two different lending type programs. One program offers business up to $10,000 based on a business plan, security and a credit check. The other program offers, in conjunction with the Bank of Montreal, businesses the ability to mortgage property for Band backing up to $150,000. Businesses must meet regular small business loan criteria as set out by the Bank and property that would normally offered as security would be mortgaged to the Band and the Band offers the monetary security to the Bank.

Economic Development also takes advantage of federal and regional economic development programs. These programs include Ontario Aboriginal Economic Development Program, The Opportunity Fund, Canada Ontario Resource Development Agreement, Aboriginal Business Canada, Ohwistha Capital Corporation, and others depending upon the industry.

In addition to assistance in finding the dollars, the Economic Development Office also offers technical business assistance and direction, and research assistance. The Office will also assist in making linkages in business and government.

If you have a project in mind or would like some assistance in getting your business some extra help, Call us at the Administration Office 396-3424 ext.110.

 FACTS *****

Diabetes rates are very high among Aboriginal people.

The number of Aboriginal people with diabetes has more than doubled since 1940. The main reason for this occurrence is the change in diet and lifestyle over the years. Aboriginal people are affected by "Type 2 Diabetes" which is preventable.

Usually Type 2 diabetes is found in people who are 40 years old and older. Today, Aboriginal children are now being diagnosed with "Type 2" diabetes.

Children and Body Image: The Dieting Truth

Something very disturbing is happening to children, especially little girls. They are not eating! They are going on diets. They are terrified of "FAT". You see it and hear it everyday - - - girls not eating lunch, children paranoid about fat in their food, name calling on the playground. It is no wonder when we live in a society where dieting practices are prevalent. Children are bombarded with dieting messages by the mass media, diet industry, family members and significant adults i.e. coaches, leaders, mentors, etc.

A frightening statistic

Percentage of Canadian Students Who Were Either on a Diet or Felt the Need to Lose Weight

Source: WHO Regional Publications, 1996

Dieting is not the answer. Increasing physical activity, eating healthy, and feeling good about oneself are the answers.

Our reactions, behaviours, and attitudes toward children and their bodies have a tremendous, long-lasting impact.

Tips for Parents and Teachers

Do's

- Watch what you say. Don't make dieting or disparaging comments about your own body.
- Teach about normal growth and development-including weight gain and other body changes at puberty.
- Be a positive role model. Eat regular, healthy meals and snacks.
- Evaluate your behaviour. Do you say and do things that are fat prejudiced?
- Analyze media images. Challenge the unrealistic images. Discuss these with children.
- Teach and promote acceptance of a wide range of body shapes and sizes.
- Teach children to feel good about themselves.

Don't's

- Don't use scales, calipers or other types of body fat measurements.
- Avoid commenting on someone's weight even if you compliment them. The message sent is you "like" them better thin.
- Avoid using words like "diet", "dieting", "good foods", "bad foods". Foster a positive approach to food.
- Avoid linking physical appearance, weight, and size with personality i.e. lazy, less worthy, lack of self-control.
- Don't ever put a child on a diet. Everyone has their own unique body size and shape.
- Don't allow any teasing about body size, shape or weight.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Don't let children diet. Encourage children to be active, eat healthy and feel good about themselves. Focus on the strengths and abilities of your child. Send the right messages about body size and shape. Remember, healthy bodies come in different shapes and sizes.

MEDIA RELEASE

Birds Being Tested for West Nile Virus

Belleville, August 20, 2001- Dead birds continue to be collected by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit. The watch for West Nile Virus grows after two possible findings in Southern and Western Ontario.

A dead crow and blue jay from Windsor and Oakville areas are undergoing further testing for West Nile Virus at the federal laboratory in Winnipeg. This will take up to two weeks.

"There is no cause for concern in Hastings & Prince Edward counties," said Dave Dodgson a supervisor in the Public Health Inspection department at the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit. "While the risk of transmission of West Nile Virus to humans is very low, the public is advised to take precautions to protect themselves against mosquitoes." Mosquitoes transmit the virus after becoming infected by feeding on the blood of birds that carry it.

Precautions include eliminating areas of standing water where mosquitoes may breed, avoiding places where mosquitoes frequent, choosing clothing that provides maximum protection and considering the use of insect repellent containing DEET.

To date, more than 750 tests have been performed on dead birds across Ontario. Neither the virus, nor its symptoms have been detected in humans.

To report a dead blue jay, crow or raven call the Health Unit at (613) 966-5513 ext 276. In North Hastings call the Bancroft office at (613) 332-4555.

THE BREASTFEEDING CIRCLE

How soon after having an anesthetic can I nurse my baby?

Although Mothers in some places are commonly told that they will have to pump their milk and throw it away for 24 hours or more after having an anesthetic, this is unnecessary and is wrong advice. Mothers elsewhere, having had anesthetics for various reasons, nurse their babies as soon as they feel up to having their baby brought to them. A common example is mothers who have given birth by Cesarean, who nurse their babies in the recovery room or even on the delivery table if mother and baby are healthy and awake.

Dr. Jack Newman, a pediatrician from The Hospital for Sick Children who runs breastfeeding clinics in Toronto, an international expert and consultant on breastfeeding and a medical advisor to La Leche League, states in his information sheets "You can still breastfeed after general, regional or local anaesthesia as soon as you are up to it."¹

Research has shown that as soon as soon as a mother feels able to breastfeed "little will remain in her system at that point and will not be harmful to her baby."²

If a general anesthetic is used, you will be unconscious for a while and may be groggy for some time after that. During the groggy period you may wake briefly and fall back asleep frequently. You may want nurse your baby, but be unable to stay awake or do any other baby care. It is fine to nurse during this period, but you will need help with the baby. Unrestricted breastfeeding will help keep your breasts soft and comfortable, and is not as impractical as it may seem if the baby's father or another helper stays with you to change diapers, burp the baby, put the baby to your breast and switch the baby from side to side.

Ministerio de Salud Publica Ecuador & L.L.I. Guatemala

What about pain medication and antibiotics?

The following frequently used drugs are generally safe during breastfeeding:

- Most antibiotics, including amoxicillin, cloxacillin, gentamycin & tetracycline.
- Acetaminophen (Tylenol, Tempra) aspirin (in usual doses, for short periods), codeine, most nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory medications³

What is Bullying? Kinds of Bullies

WHAT IS BULLYING? There is some confusion about what constitutes bullying. Bullying is defined as something that someone repeatedly does or says things to gain power over or to dominate another person. The following are some of the common examples of bullying.

- Name calling, put – downs, cruel teasing;
- Saying or writing nasty things about them;
- Deliberately excluding them from activities;
- Not talking to them;
- Threatening them with bodily harm;
- Taking or damaging their things;
- Hitting or kicking them; or
- Making them do things they don't want to do.

KINDS OF BULLIES: There are several kinds of bullies. "Proactive bullies" need no provocation and are naturally more aggressive towards others. This group frequently has poor social and relational skills and compensates for lack by picking on others. "Reactive bullies" have often been victimized by other bullies who then retaliate by becoming a bully. A third group of bullies might be called "provocative victims." These people provoke fights or aggressive encounters with others. They are quick to become oppositional or defiant and cry or display exaggerated responses in conflict situations. This group is the most rejected by peers and has the fewest friends.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO STOP BULLYING

There are many effective strategies for both teachers and parents who wish to stop bullying. An important starting point is to realize that much bullying occurs without the knowledge of teachers and parents, and that many victims are very reluctant to tell adults of their problems with bullying. They may be ashamed to be a victim, and they are afraid that adults cannot or will not help to resolve the situation. They may have been threatened with retaliation if the tell.

Also, adults must re-examine some of their own beliefs with regard to interpersonal behaviour before they can intervene effectively. Many teachers and parents tell children not to "tattle" and to resolve their problems themselves. In the bullying situation, though, there is a power imbalance of some kind, which ensures that the victim always gets the worst of the interaction. The victim and bully both need intervention in order to stop the pattern.

Some important strategies in stopping bullying are: providing good supervision for children; providing effective consequences to bullies; using good communication between teachers and parents; providing all children opportunities to develop good interpersonal skills; and creating a social context which is supportive and inclusive, in which aggressive, bully behaviour is not tolerated by the majority.

WHAT CAN PARENTS DO IF THEIR CHILDREN ARE BEING BULLIED?

1. Ask the child directly. Often children do not wish to tell their parents due to shame and embarrassment, or fear that bullies will retaliate if they tell. Look for signs such as: fear of going to school, lack of friends, missing belongings and torn clothing, and increased fearfulness and anxiety.
2. Work with the school immediately to make sure your child is safe, that effective consequences are applied toward the bully, and that monitoring at school is adequate. Advocate for involvement of the bully's parents. If the bullying is happening on the way to and from school, arrange for the child to get to school with older, supportive children, or take him or her until other interventions can take place.
3. If your child is timid, and lacks friends, try to arrange for your child to participate in positive social groups, which meet his or her interests. Developing your child's special skills and confidence in the context of a positive social group can be very helpful.
4. Suggest that the school implement a comprehensive anti-bullying program. A home and school association meeting to discuss and support such an initiative can be helpful.

A SCHOOLYARD SURVIVAL GUIDE

Here's some useful advice from professionals working with the bullying problem.

- Where does the bullying start? The most aggressive children, in terms of most hits per minute, are preschoolers. "What I hear over and over again is that kids arrive at Kindergarten, even preschool girls, with some of these behaviours in place," says Cindi Seddon, principal of Seaview Elementary School in Port Moody and the author of two anti-bullying guidebooks.
- Know the signs: Most victims of bullying are scared to speak to a parent or teacher for fear that speaking out will only make things worse. But experts say there are some obvious signs: Children will make themselves ill in order to stay home from school; or they'll come home for lunch on a regular basis; or they'll show a sudden change in work habits. Cindi Seddon says body language also provides some clues. "These children tend not to walk very sure-footed," she says. "They're a little bit on their toes, they're hunched forward, don't make eye contact, don't know how to make polite excusing statements to get around things. They try to look invisible."
- Don't hit back: Your dad's old advice – "Get out there and punch him one" – usually does not work. "Counselling a child to use violence to solve the situation is just not wise counsel," says Seddon. "I think it puts children at great risk."
- According to research by Debra Pepler of York University in Ontario, peers intervene in only about 11 per cent of bullying episodes. "When peers intervene, they are successful in stopping bullying about half the time," she says. Fear, a lack of strategy and a poor understanding of their roles are the main reasons peers don't intervene more often.
- In Canada, 42 per cent of bullies and 46 per cent of victims say they have talked to a teacher about the problem, according to Pepler's research. Teachers intervene in 14 per cent of classroom episodes and only 4 per cent of playground episodes. She says 62 per cent of victims talk to parents.
- A study by U.S. researchers found that, among chronic schoolyard bullies, 60 per cent had at least one criminal conviction by age 24. That some 60 per cent is also more taxing on public services.
- The word "gay" is now widely used in the schoolyard as an alternative to "stupid" or "silly." Experts say homophobic terms are often used innocently – but that the consequences can be painful.

EDUCATION

TRUSTEE'S REPORT August 2001

In 2000 and 2001 the Ontario Ministry of Education passed a Safe Schools Act and distributed a Code of Conduct which school boards will be required to enforce. Provincial regulations setting out the details of enforcement have not yet been finalized, but in preparation for the new regime the Hastings and Prince Edward District School Board (HPEDSB) at its June meeting passed interim policies to apply the new legislation, effective September 1.

I will summarize some of these developments but first I want to draw attention to a lesson from traditional Mohawk teachings.

The legend of the Good Twin and the Evil Twin recounts that at the beginning of the world the Good Twin created plants and animals for food and other benefits to humankind and the Evil Twin came after him and created poisonous plants and snakes and biting insects. The Good Twin proposed a contest to see whose power would prevail. The challenge was to move a mountain that stood at a distance. The Evil Twin did succeed in moving the mountain a bit but as he was crowing about his success the Good Twin told him to look behind him. As he turned around, the Evil Twin smashed his face against the mountain which the Good Twin had moved up very close. After that the Good Twin's power to help humankind prevailed but the Evil Twin was only subdued, not destroyed. So Mohawks are encouraged to do their work early, in the clear light of day, so that evil which still lurks about will not have a chance to work its mischief. The Iroquois mask displaying a twisted face is a continuing reminder that good is stronger than evil.

In the old days, when Mohawks occupied their nation territory and the whole village subscribed to basically the same code of conduct it may have been easy to separate good from bad, right from wrong. Today at Tyendinaga we have borrowed many customs from other cultures. We absorb them at work and school and from the television programs that bombard us from the time we are born. Grandparent and grandchild may have very different notions of "right" behaviour. Different views within families or within the community can touch of struggles that feel like good battling evil, when in fact both sides are trying to pursue their understanding of good. When the contest is between my notion of "good" and the other person's notion of "good" we don't need a struggle so much as we need to talk things over, drawing on the "good mind" that our ancestors valued so highly.

All of this is relevant to the Safe Schools Act, the Code of Conduct and the HPEDSB policy that will come into effect at Moira Secondary School in September.

The Ministry of Education has set out a list of behaviours that will result in suspension (removal from school for a period of 1 to 20 days) or expulsion (removal from school for 21 days to one year). For example: Uttering a threat to inflict serious bodily harm on another person will result in suspension. Committing a physical assault on another person, such as to require medical treatment, will result in the more severe consequence of expulsion.

The suspension or expulsion need not be imposed if any one of three conditions exist: 1) the student is unable to control his or her behaviour; 2) he or she does not understand the consequences of the behaviour; or 3) the teacher or principal judges that the student's continuing presence in the school does not create an unacceptable risk. An appeal process is available to students and their parents at several stages.

The Ministry of Education is rightly concerned about incidents of violence, harassment, drug and alcohol offences in schools. There have been some high profile violent incidents in Toronto and some disturbing incidents in Hastings and Prince Edward schools as well. The Ministry has responded by setting down rules that Principals have a duty to enforce. There are some questions that still need to be sorted out. For example, since possessing a weapon will result in expulsion, what is considered a weapon?

One of the principles underpinning the Safe Schools Act, according to the Ministry of Education, is that "All members of the school community are to be treated with respect and dignity, especially persons in positions of authority". Mohawks would probably want to add to that rule: Students and teachers have an equal right to be treated with respect and dignity.

There is no doubt that the Safe Schools Act will result in more rigid enforcement of penalties for prohibited behaviour. When clashes occur, it will be very important to have a forum for parents, students and school authorities to talk things over and apply "good mind" to finding solutions that work for everyone involved. I have talked with Mike Brant and Bill Maracle about inviting the new principal and vice-principal to Tyendinaga this fall to meet with parents and make community connections in a friendly environment. We are still trying to figure out how to make such a meeting inviting to parents and students. All suggestions are welcome.

Skennen kowa. Great Peace to you.

Board, and the First Nations
Technical Institute.

What is HOPE?

Hope is an educational alternative school that has been designed to meet the specific learning needs of Mohawk students who have not yet graduated from high school.

Students of HOPE work towards their high school diploma in an individualized program developed in consultation with the student.

Why HOPE?

For some native students the traditional school setting has not been a successful experience.

HOPE offers a flexible approach that values success through the development of an individual program.

Where is HOPE?

The HOPE project is located on the Tyendingaga Mohawk Territory at the First Nations Technical Institute.

Students will attend the program there as they work towards their high school diploma from Moira Secondary School.

When is HOPE?

The HOPE project is in operation five days a week during the school year.

Students must attend fifteen hours each week to maintain their enrolment in the program. However, the hours per day a student attends are flexible and will be negotiated with the instructors.

Who can attend HOPE?

Students must be between the ages of 16 and 21 and, in most cases, will have been out of school for at least six months.

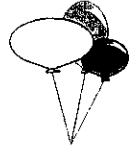

How can you register for HOPE?

To register, you can contact the guidance office at Moira Secondary School at 962-8668 or Ian Hill at the First Nations Technical Institute at 396-2122.

There is no cost for the program.

WOODLAND CULTURAL CENTRE
184 MOHAWK ST., P.O. BOX 1506, BRANTFORD, ON. CANADA N3T 5V6

Media Release -

Mohawk Ideals, Victorian Values; Oronhyatekha, M.D. Exhibit Opens at Woodland

Officially opened on July 29, 2001, at the Woodland Cultural Centre Museum, Brantford, the "Mohawk Ideals, Victorian Values; Oronhyatekha, M.D." exhibit presents a fascinating look into the life and times of Oronhyatekha (1841-1907), a Mohawk of the Six Nations.

The exhibit features many very unique objects, including a life-size bronze statue of Oronhyatekha, cast in 1899 when he was at the peak of his career as the Supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters. The exhibit also features Oronhyatekha's traditional outfit he wore to greet the Prince of Wales in 1860, on loan from the Los Angeles County Museum, California, as well as an exact replica of the Coronation Chair, Westminster Abbey, England.

As a world traveller, Oronhyatekha collected and created a museum which featured over 800 artifacts and natural history specimens. The Mohawk Ideals, Victorian Values exhibit has recreated this museum and features objects such as the George III gorget and shawl of Chief Joseph Brant, Tecumseh's compass presented to him by General Sir Isaac Brock, 1812, and many other objects associated with celebrated First Nations leaders. The exhibit also features a platypus, and the now extinct Bird of Paradise.

The Mohawk Ideals, Victorian Values; Oronhyatekha, M.D. exhibit is a collaboration between the Woodland Cultural Centre Museum and the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, and the basis for a unique formal agreement between the ROM and a First Nations museum in Canada, paving the way for other similar initiatives in the future.

Mohawk Ideals, Victorian Values; Oronhyatekha, M.D. was curated by Keith A. Jamieson, a Mohawk of the Six Nations, who has worked to present a Mohawk perspective of one of their own, spending five years canvassing the two communities mostly associated with Oronhyatekha, Six Nations of the Grand River near Brantford, Ontario and Tyendinaga Mohawk Territory on the Bay of Quinte, Deseronto. He has also worked within many museums which hold in their collections objects associated with Dr. Oronhyatekha.

The exhibit will be at the Woodland Cultural Centre Museum until December 24, 2001 and special events are planned over the course of its stay. For further information, contact;
